Watchmaker Must Face Judge, Jury On Murder Charge

Ruest Committed For Trial In Quebec Airline Tragedy Case

QUEBEC (CP)—Genevieve Ruest, crippled Quebec watchmaker who made part of a time-bomb that caused an air disaster, today was committed for trial on a charge of murder.

Judge Achille Pettigrew ordered that the 51-year-old paralytic stand trial at the next term of the Criminal Assizes, opening Oct. 10.

Ruest previously had admitted he built a detonator for the time-bomb which wrecked a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane at nearby Sault au Cochon last Sept. 9, killing 23.

J. Albert Guay, 32-year-old jeweler whose wife was one of the victims, is under sentence to be hanged Jan. 12 for master-minding the bomb plot.

Ruest has testified he thought the bomb was being made for Guay's use in blowing up stumps. The Crown contended that Guay wanted to get rid of his young wife to collect $10,000 insurance on her life and leave himself free to marry a pretty, 19-year-old waitress.

Judge Pettigrew's decision today brought to an end Ruest's preliminary hearing which began Wednesday.

Crown Prosecutor Noel Dorion closed his case Thursday after Mrs. Pitre, Ruest's 41-year-old sister, had testified that her brother told her to commit suicide after the plane crash.

NOW ON RAIL

Mrs. Pitre later was freed on $2,000 bail on a charge of intimidating witnesses. Judge Pettigrew ordered the woman arrested Wednesday after two witnesses had said in court they were "threatened."

Mrs. Pitre's preliminary hearing was fixed for June 21.

Ruest is charged with the murder of Mrs. J. Albert Guay, one of 23 persons aboard the airliner who died when a time-bomb explosion sent the plane crashing into a mountain side.

Ruest's arrest June 6 followed a statement made by Guay in his Montreal Bordeaux jail death cell.

Mrs. Pitre said in court Thursday that the morning of the crash she put a parcel on the plane for Guay. She was told it was a statue.

Later, she said, Guay showed her a newspaper story which said police were looking for a "mystery woman."

It was then she said that Guay told her the parcel contained a time-bomb and told her to commit suicide.

DENIES CHARGE

Slack asserted he was innocent when interviewed by reporters.

Asked whether he knew Harry Gold, he replied:

"I don't recall ever knowing anybody by that name."

No plea was permitted at his arraignment before U.S. Commissioner A. Van W. Hancock.

He will enter his plea at Knoxville, Tenn., where the case will be presented to a federal grand jury.

Conviction on a charge of espionage in wartime carries a possible penalty of death.

Philip Suskind, treasurer of the Sunnyside Paint Corporation, where Slack has been assistant superintendent for several months, described Slack as "very capable, never a trouble-maker" and a church-goer.

Mrs. Slack turned reporters away from her home at Clay, 12 miles north of Syracuse.

Syracuse Man Facing Charge As Spy's Aide

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Alfred Dean Slack, 44-year-old Syracuse chemist, stood accused today of conspiring to supply Russian agents with samples of a powerful United States explosive.

Slack, a native of Syracuse who claims he is "violently opposed to Communism," was arrested Thursday night by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation on a charge of espionage. He was jailed at nearby Utica on $10,000 bail.

The $75-a-week paint firm chemist worked in the wartime years of 1943-44 at Kingsport, Tenn., where the explosive RDX was manufactured.

The F.B.I. said Slack admitted giving samples and production secrets to Harry Gold, Philadelphia chemist now awaiting trial on an espionage charge. Gold is alleged to have passed them "to his Soviet principal, Semen M. Semenov."

Victorian Promoted In Shuffle Of Navy Heads

OTTAWA (CP)—A shuffle affecting three of the top administrative posts of the Royal Canadian Navy and four of Canada's senior naval officers was announced today by the Defence Department.

The changes stem from the retirement in September of Rear-Admiral Frank L. Houghton, C.B.E., of Ottawa. Admiral Houghton, 52, has been vice-chief of the naval staff since September, 1947.

His successor will be Rear-Admiral Harry DeWolf, C.B.E., D.S.O., D.S.C., 47, of Bedford, N.S., one of Canada's celebrated naval commanders of the war.

He has been Flag Officer, Pacific Coast, since September, 1948, and will take up his new duties at Ottawa Sept. 11.

Succeeding Rear-Admiral DeWolf on the Pacific Coast will be Rear-Admiral Wallace B. Creery, C.B.E., 50, of Vancouver and Ottawa. At present he holds the appointment of chief of naval personnel at headquarters and will take up his new post Aug. 30.

Capt. James C. Hibbard, D.S.C., and Bar. 42, of Hemlock, Que., and Victoria, B.C., will succeed Rear-Admiral Creery as Chief of Naval Personnel Aug. 5 and will be promoted to the rank of Acting Commodore. Capt. Hibbard now is taking an advanced staff course.

Both Rear-Admiral DeWolf and Capt. Hibbard will serve as members of the Naval Board when they assume their new appointments.

RESCUED 839

Rear-Admiral DeWolf commanded the destroyer St. Laurent early in the war. Under his command she took part in the evacuation of France and later rescued 839 survivors of the Arandora Star, a liner torpedoed while carrying German and Italian prisoners.

He later commanded the destroyer Haida and after the war commanded the aircraft carriers Warrior and Magnificent, sailing the latter on her maiden voyage from the United Kingdom.

Rear-Admiral Houghton served as a Royal Navy midshipman on Atlantic patrols in the First World War. He once commanded the destroyer Vancouver and during the Second World War for a time was commanding officer of the auxiliary cruisers Prince Robert and Prince Henry in the Pacific and the Aleutians.

LENGTBY ACTION

Capt. Hibbard in April, 1940, took command of the destroyer Skeena on the Atlantic convoy run. In September, 1941, the escort group of which he was senior officer and its convoy were under attack for 66 consecutive hours, one of the heaviest U-boat assaults of the war. For this action he was decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross.

CHINESE SHELL BRITISH SHIP

HONGKONG (Reuters)—A British ship returned to Hongkong today to report a shelling attack by a Chinese Nationalist warship on the high seas without warning.

She is the 1,300-ton Tal Chung Shan, which the Nationalists released Wednesday after detaining her for nearly three months.

The captain said four small shells hit the ship but there were no casualties and no serious damage.

Peruvian Army Claims Revolt Total Failure

AREQUIPA, Peru (AP)—Peru's military government today claimed complete control of Arequipa and said that leaders of a short, bloody revolt here have been arrested.

(A broadcast by the official Radio Continental in Lima, heard in La Paz, Bolivia, said more than 120 persons had been killed and approximately 300 were wounded in the fighting at Arequipa since Tuesday.)

(An Army broadcast from Arequipa, also heard in La Paz, said all rebels—including the leaders—would be freed and no reprisals would be made.)

Nearly all the city's businesses were closed by a general strike. Paving block barricades, thrown up during the fighting, still made many streets impassable.

Censorship, lifted for a time Thursday, was reimposed Tuesday night.

(The Army-controlled Radio Lands at Arequipa indicated that fighting still might be threatening or continuing. Broadcasts heard in La Paz said: "If the rebels insist on fighting, the army will pursue it to the end.")

The government blamed the revolt on a political organization called "Accion Civica" (Civic Action), Communists and Leftists.

POLICE TAKE RAMPAGING GI PEACEFULLY

Oklahoma Badman Held In Home Of Fraulein

MUNICH, Germany (UP)—Oklahoma badman Homer Cook, ill with blood poisoning and weak from hunger, surrendered to police without a fight today in the bedroom of his German sweetheart.

Two U.S. military police and six German police closed in on the Munich apartment of a 21-year-old Anna Sporer at 8 a.m., two hours after a German truck driver had reported seeing Cook stagger into the building.

Anna was not at home. Police battered down the door of her flat and found the six-foot-one, 200-pound Cook sprawled out on the bed. He still wore the same fatigue trousers and undershirt in which he escaped 60 hours before from Dachau Prison, 10 miles north of Munich.

The 27-year-old Cook and ex-boxer didn't seem to notice the police until one of them prodded him with a cocked revolver.

"You won't have to use that," Cook said quietly.

ARM BLACK

He appeared to be in great pain, wincing every time he moved his left arm. It was swollen and black almost to the elbow from a wound in his hand. He had ripped his hand when he scaled a 12-foot wall of the jail and fled into the woods last Tuesday night.

They have not been heard from since.

About 250 men, most of the male working population of this town 5,500 feet above sea level, normally are employed at the mine.

The coal company general manager, Dave B. Young, Thursday night gave this version of how the men were trapped:

The men, fireboss Roy Carr, 38; Mike Kapuscinski, 58; Pete Morris, 66; Rade Kasonovich, 62; and Steve Tomlenovich, 55, were high up in the east workings.

Two hundred and seventy feet above them was the surface—and a cave-in. A hole, large enough to hold about 6,000 tons of coal, had formed as a result of the cave-in of what had once been a surface working or a section of shaft mining.

Hope Vanishing For Five Men In Flooded Coal Mine

CADOMIN, Alta. (CP)—With little hope of finding five trapped comrades alive, rescue workers today worked shoulder to shoulder in a narrow coal-mine tunnel shoveling back the muck that has imprisoned the men for more than 36 hours.

Mining operations in this foothills town, 200 miles southwest of Edmonton, were at a standstill as the quarter-mile long conveyor belt moved mud and debris out of the mouth of the mine. The operation has been under way since Wednesday night.

That was when water from a surface drainage canal plunged through a cave-in in the company's east-shaft mine, flooded the shaft and carried hundreds of tons of debris into a tunnel, trapping five men working 270 feet from the mine's entrance.

5,000 Acres Of Land Under Water In B.C.

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Flooding rivers disrupted rail transportation and forced more than 150 persons from their homes in three British Columbia communities today.

Service was halted for at least two days on the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway because the Birkenhead River had washed over the line in two places about 90 miles north of Vancouver.

Charles Donaldson, a general store operator in the northern B.C. district of Usk, near the Skeena River, said almost everyone had left the town and the neighboring community of Doreen.

The flood refugees were quartered in government tents on nearby high ground.

A new threat developed on the headwaters of the Fraser River which already had passed the flood level at Mission and flooded between 2,000 and 3,000 acres of farmland.

Several roads were awash in the town of Prince George on the northern reaches of the Fraser and the water was a foot deep over the cache area of the community, site of a large planing mill.

Altogether more than 5,000 acres of land were flooded in various sections of the province.

UP FOOT A DAY

The Fraser River, snaking out of its 90,000-square-mile drainage basin, was rising 12 inches a day as mountain snows melted in the summer heat. The Weather Office predicted more hot weather for tomorrow.

An island in the river was abandoned Thursday and 25 residents joined the swelling army of flood refugees.

In the lower Pemberton Valley, 100 miles north of Vancouver, the Lillooet River had swept away a bridge leading to Lillooet across the Cayoosh Creek and 400 farmers were isolated.

Debris-strewn waters spread over 2,000 to 3,000 acres of pastureland lying outside the protection of dikes erected following the disastrous 1948 floods.

The situation became tense as a blazing sun brought 80-degree temperatures to the mountains of the interior and sent melting snow cascading into the streams.

The rivers rose during the night but the levels held practically steady during the day.

The Fraser gouted into newly-rebuilt dikes and seeped through in several points, dike patrols reported. They said the seepage was particularly serious between Abbotsford and Chilliwack.

Flooding was sudden, in sharp contrast to the recent Red River flood in Manitoba which inched slowly over great expanses of flat land.

The Fraser rolled toward the Pacific with a growing load of debris: Logs, boxes, bottles and refuse.

HONGKONG (Reuters)—The British ship Anhui, with about 700 Chinese passengers aboard, struck a mine off the south China port of Swatow today.

The 3,494-ton Anhui was bound for Swatow from Singapore via Hongkong. Most of the passengers boarded the ship at Singapore.

LONDON (AP)—The Communist Daily Worker of London knuckled under today to a union demand that Communist Party politics be kept out of the circulation department.

Fifteen union warehousemen—the whole truck driving and mail room staff—walked out. Fred W. Downs, chapel chairman, said the management "wants to bring in a Communist and make it a political closed shop."

He said no one in the chapel was a Communist.

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal and Quebec governments plan to contribute a total of $5,600,000 toward the rehabilitation of residents of Rimouski and Cabano, the Quebec towns recently ravaged by disastrous fires.

Prime Minister St. Laurent announced today in the Commons that the Quebec government plans to contribute $2,500,000 to Rimouski and $300,000 to Cabano. The federal government will match the grants.

Wounded Thug Used Truck Of Murdered Man

PORTLAND (AP)—The owner of a truck that carried Wayne Long on his unsuccessful bank robbery attempt here was slain the night before.

His body was found Thursday and was identified this morning, F.B.I. agent R. L. Murphy said. "The truck owner was Walter Rucker, 16, of Portland. He disappeared Wednesday night, his mother reported."

Thursday two boys found a man's body—a bullet hole in the head—near Eagle Creek in Clackamas County, because neighbors said they had seen the man driving a truck that answered the description of the one long-parked near the First National Bank's southeast Portland branch, police investigated.

Long, in a brief police interview, had said only that he had stolen the truck.

Long, brought down by F.B.I. agents' gunfire as he fled down a busy street in a hospital with a shattered left arm and wounded right wrist and hand.

He was running toward a truck that he had parked near the bank when he fell, wounded. That truck was registered to Walter Rucker who has been missing since Wednesday night.

Relatives of Rucker were to view the body today in an effort to establish identification.

Meanwhile Long, who failed to make away with the $9,716 he got in the bank, was charged with bank robbery and assaulting a federal officer.

Ex-Army N.C.O., Scientist Of Caltech Grabbed In F.B.I. Swoop

By CANADIAN PRESS

The Federal Bureau of Investigation today arrested the third American citizen accused of giving United States secrets to a Russian spy ring.

It was the second such arrest within 24 hours and there was evidence at Washington that other arrests were imminent.

All three Americans arrested are said to have passed U.S. secrets to Dr. Klaus Fuchs, German-born British scientist, sentenced recently to 14 years in London for his part in the espionage.

Seized in New York City was David Greenglass, 28, a former United States army non-commissioned officer at Albuquerque, N.Mex., where he allegedly fished wartime atomic secrets for Russia.

The F.B.I. later said Greenglass had worked on the atomic "bomb itself."

His arrest followed the F.B.I.'s seizure in Syracuse, N.Y., Thursday night of Alfred Dean Slack, a 44-year-old chemist, also linked by the F.B.I. with the Fuchs spy apparatus.

Both allegedly had passed secrets to Harry Gold, Philadelphia now awaiting trial on charges of serving as intermediary between Fuchs and Russian agents.

Almost simultaneously with Greenglass' arrest in New York, west coast F.B.I. agents seized Dr. Sidney Weinbaum, 52, a California Institute of Technology scientist, charged with falsely swearing he had not been a Communist.

Weinbaum was formerly with the C.I.T. jet-propulsion laboratory.

Richard B. Hood, head of the Los Angeles F.B.I. office, said Weinbaum is charged with perjury and fraud against the government.

In a complaint filed with U.S. Commissioner Howard V. Calverly, the government alleges that:

"On or about Sept. 23, 1949, at Los Angeles, Sydney Weinbaum, under oath before the industrial employment review board wilfully and fraudulently testified that he had never been a member of the Communist Party, when in fact he had held membership in the Communist Party professional unit No. 122, under the party name of Sydney Empson."

Hood also charged that about April 8, 1949, Weinbaum, "in his personnel security questionnaire which he signed in connection with his employment with the jet propulsion laboratory at Caltech wilfully omitted a statement that he had been a member of the Communist Party."

Weinbaum's employment with the jet propulsion laboratory was terminated last July, the F.B.I. said. Since then he has been a research fellow in the chemistry department at C.I.T. The charge against Greenglass said he conspired with Gold and one Antolli A. Yakovlev, alias John, and "divers others" to deliver atomic secrets to Russia from "about Jan. 1, 1945, and continuously thereafter for a considerable period, the exact period" being unknown.

The acts took place in New Mexico and elsewhere, the complaint charged.

In another section, it alleged that in June or July, 1945, Greenglass met Gold in Albuquerque and delivered "to said Harry Gold information relating to the national defence of the United States."

"Asked if Greenglass had obtained atomic secrets from other accused spies for passage to Gold, the F.B.I. chief said that the prisoner obtained the secrets himself."

Greenglass is married and the father of two children.

BRIDGES LOSES CITIZENSHIP U.S. GAVE HIM

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Federal court today granted the government's motion to revoke the citizenship of Harry Bridges, C.I.O. long-shore leader.

Federal Judge George B. Harris issued the ruling. The government demanded that the naturalization of Bridges, Australian-born, be revoked after he was convicted of perjury recently.

The perjury conviction was based on a sworn statement in his 1945 citizenship hearing that he wasn't a Communist.

Bridges is under sentence to five years in prison. He has appealed.

Government Plans To Buy Property Leak, M.P. Says

OTTAWA (CP)—Howard Green (P.C.-Vancouver-Quadra) charged in the Commons today that "leakage" of information about government plans to acquire more space had developed into "racketeering that must be stopped."

He said there was "leakage" that enabled persons to acquire property the government was known to be interested in and then later to acquire a long-term federal lease.

He mentioned post office expansion in Vancouver.

Works Minister Fournier said he would not use the word "racketeering" and disputed the implication that any of his officials were involved.

TRUMAN, OTHERS IN U.S. CAPITAL, WITHOUT MILK

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman and almost everybody else in Washington had at least one thing in common today—they are doing without milk.

Delivery men have been on strike against the capital's nine dairies since last Saturday, but this was the first "milkless" day for Mr. Truman.

Blair House didn't run out until Wednesday and the President had been out of town until Thursday night.

Many Washingtonians are trekking to nearby Maryland and Virginia to tap milk supplies that are not affected by the strike.

Persons who are ill and parents with children younger than two can buy milk at the strike-bound dairies if they have a doctor's certificate. Only such persons physically unable to get to the dairies get their milk delivered at home.

SOLDIERS RUSH TO SAVE FRASER DIKES

Barriers At Agassiz Threatened By Flood;
5,000 In Bridge River District Isolated

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbians' fear of a recurrence of the disastrous 1948 floods came true today. The 1950 floods were upon them.

As the surging Fraser River beat at the dikes and smaller rivers tumbled over their banks into fertile valleys, volunteers got ready to man the protecting walls of earth and stone.

Army engineers were called to duty in the Agassiz area as flood waters weakened a five-mile stretch of dike. Agassiz, 65 miles east of here, was the centre of the 1948 flood fight. So far, there has been no evacuation of the community of 1,800.

Rising waters attacked road and railway. A 60-foot stretch of the Canadian National Railway transcontinental line was washed out at Cisco, 140 miles north of here, by a rushing tributary of the Fraser. Trains were re-routed and officials said it would take a day and a half to repair the line.

SKEENA OVERFLOWS

Some 400 miles to the north, the Skeena River highway was closed on a 60-mile stretch as the Skeena poured over its banks. Some 100 residents of Usk had already evacuated their homes.

Premier Johnson appealed to the army for help. Some 132 engineers immediately left their Chilliwack camp for the Agassiz area.

At Hope, 99 miles east of Vancouver, the Fraser reached 30.58 feet, almost a foot higher than on this date in 1948.

In the interior, rivers opened a path of devastation.

Hardest hit is the sprawling Bridge River area, 200 miles east of here, where 5,000 people are isolated by rail, road and telegraph.

Evacuation of the village of Minto, near Bridge River, a mining centre, is under way. Streets are under three to four feet of water. The village has a population of 200.

Ranchers have tied their homes in the area, driving cattle to higher ground. Some ranch homes have been swept away in the swirling tide of water.

Evacuation of Minto's residents started Thursday night as water from the junction of Bridge River and Gum Creek swept into the village's main street.

(Bridge River is a Fraser tributary.)

The towns of Gold Bridge, Brorne and surrounding communities are isolated.

HIGHER THAN 1948

The water is reported higher than in the disastrous flood year of 1948.

The hotel and a score of houses in Minto are already flooded. Other homes are threatened.

Rivers throughout B.C. are rising and there is no sign of a break in the hot spell. Temperatures high in the 80's were forecast for today.

PLACE SANDBAGS

(A BUP dispatch said 300 men were sandbagging the Agassiz dike in an effort to halt the onrushing water which had already surrounded one home and spread over scores of acres of farmland inside the dike area.

"She's boiling through badly right now and the water is going around one house," said Agassiz flood emergency committee chairman W. H. Hicks.)

Some farmlands outside the dike area in the Fraser Valley are water-covered, and in others some families have been evacuated. Furniture was stored in attics.

The swollen Lillooet River, 120 miles east of Vancouver, swirled over 10 farms in the Pemberton Valley, taking toll of crops. Farms in the lower valley are being evacuated, some by boat. Some roads have been closed.

Flooding of the Birkenhead River, about 75 miles north of Squamish, flooded the Pacific Great Eastern railway right-of-way. Train service was halted.

High Operational Costs Bring Approval Of Boost

Price of gasoline in B.C. was raised today by one and a half cents a gallon.

This means Victoria motorists will pay 38 cents a gallon for regular gasoline and 40 cents for premium gasoline.

The cost to motorists in Vancouver will be one cent less per gallon because of a variation in the tank wagon price in various parts of the province.

Announcement of the rise in price was made by Premier Byron Johnson following a meeting of the provincial cabinet.

The cabinet approved the increase on recommendation of the Coal and Petroleum Control Board.

The increase is one cent a gallon on the price of gasoline to wholesalers and an increase of one-half a cent on the retail spread.

Premier Johnson said the government granted the increase because the earning power of the oil companies had decreased considerably due to administrative costs, wage increases and other factors.

The decision was not made, he added, until after the books of all oil companies were examined thoroughly by the chartered accountant firm of George A. Touche.

The one-half cent increase for service station operators was granted in view of increase costs in administration, particularly in connection with higher wages being paid, it was stated.

The 38 cents a gallon regular gasoline price for Victoria motorists compares with amounts being paid in other parts of Canada: Toronto, 40.8 cents; Winnipeg, 41.9 cents; Regina, 42.4 cents; Calgary, 37.1 cents; Montreal, 40 cents; St. John, 39 cents, and Halifax, 39 cents.

Jump in the tank wagon price per gallon in Victoria is from 22 to 23 cents regular and 24 to 25 premium; and in Vancouver from 21 to 22 regular and 23 to 24 premium.

136,000 D.P.'s Invited To U.S. In Next Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman today signed legislation opening the doors of the U.S. to an additional 136,000 displaced persons.

The measure revises a 1948 law expiring June 30, that authorized the entry of 205,000 D.P.'s — persons driven from their homes by two wars. It extends the program for another year and increases the number eligible for admission to 341,000.

Upwards of 153,000 displaced persons have already come to the United States to make their homes.

In addition to increasing the total of displaced persons who could become U.S. residents under the program, the new law provides for the admission of 5,000 war orphans from the free countries of Europe and Turkey who are adopted by American parents.

One change erases the requirement that 30 per cent of the D.P.'s be farmers and that 40 per cent be from the Baltic states.

Grim Signs Men Trapped In Coal Mine Succumbed

CADOMIN, Alta. (CP)—Grim evidence that one of five miners trapped in a Rocky Mountain coal mine may have been crushed to death was unearthed today by a rescue party.

The five-man party brought a broken miner's lamp to the Cadomin Coal Co. office when he came off shift early today, 36 hours after five other miners had been entombed by tons of water-washed silt and coal.

One of the miners, Joe Fedynak, also disclosed that a man's leg wearing a heavy shoe and dismembered below the knee had been found by a rescue party earlier.

Thirty-eight truckloads of muck had been taken from the mine as parties worked clock-round, six-hour shifts to clear the mud-clogged passage ways.

Mechanical muck digging machines were to be put to work later today. Mine officials said clearance work would be speeded but refused to speculate when the imprisoned miners could be reached. They are given little chance of survival.

It may be hours. It may be weeks. It depends which of the many channels the mud came down, said one official.

WINNIPEG (BUP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police said today they were holding a mother in the fatal stabbing of her six-year-old son.

Police said Franklyn Charles Lower had been stabbed to death Thursday at his home in Bonnie Doon, a Canadian Pacific Railway town in rural Manitoba, about 60 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

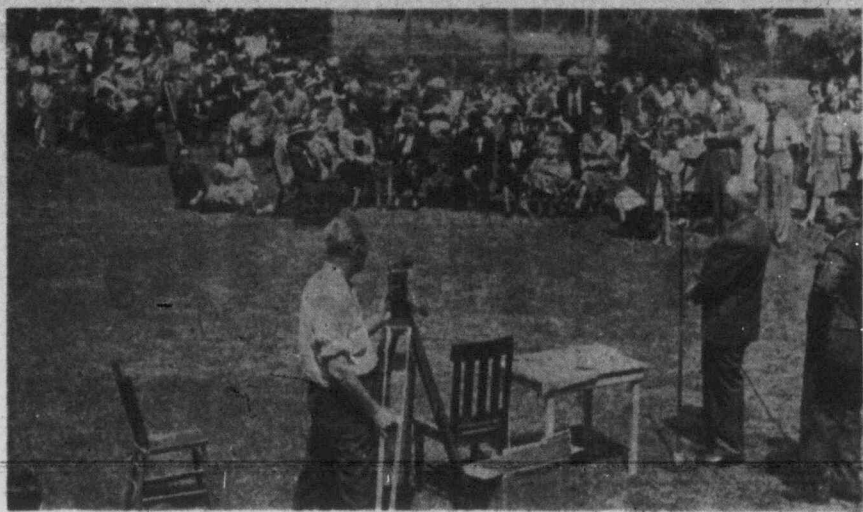

A coroner's jury met today to investigate the case, in which Mrs. Richard Lower was held on a coroner's warrant.

The settlement calls for a wage increase of 12½ cents with more union security.

Salt Spring Island Event Brings Together Some Of Pioneers Who Opened Up Country Of British Columbia For New Generations

Premier Byron Johnson, right, was among hundreds of Vancouver Island and mainland visitors at Harbor House, Ganges, to honor Gulf Island pioneers.

"We owe a lot to these pioneers for opening this country for us," said the Premier.

Enjoying himself is Harry Caldwell, who has lived longer on Salt Spring Island continuously than any other resident. He and wife were reunion's oldest pair.

FELT VERY YOUNG, LUCKY

Old-Timers Recall Other Days' World

By HUMPHRY DAVY
I felt very young Thursday when I attended a pioneer's reunion held at Salt Spring Island. I also felt very lucky to be living in a modern age with all its mechanical devices and gadgets after hearing old-timers recall the days of the oxen, horse and canoe.

The celebrations were held at Harbor House Hotel, Ganges, in honor of pioneers who had lived on the Gulf Islands prior to June 16, 1900. There were over 100 old-timers there, over twice my age, as well as hundreds of visitors from all parts of Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Mixing and talking to these old-timers was like stepping into another world which you can visualize but cannot feel. Only those old people could feel the past—an age which has little in common with the present day.

Joseph J. Akerman, 82, the first white man born on Salt Spring Island, was one of these old-timers. "I suppose in your boyhood days you traveled by horse?" I asked.

USED OXEN
He looked up at me in surprise. "You couldn't have kept a horse here then," he answered. "We had to use oxen."

"The roads were rough trails unfit for horses," he went on. "We traveled by oxen and for a sled used a crook of a tree."

I could visualize the scene then—lonely cabins, trails running through dense forests, people cut off from urban communities and entirely dependent for a livelihood on what they could get from the soil, forest and sea.

"Once every two weeks a postman brought mail to the island in a small boat," he went on. "It was only a small bundle of letters which he carried in one hand."

"We were dependant on Victoria for our sugar and tea," he added. "Sometimes settlers would travel to Victoria in a canoe and would bring back a few necessities."

NO REGRETS
I talked to many old timers who came from some of the other Gulf Islands. They all had similar stories to tell. But what was strange none regretted living in days when the washing machine, the motor car, telephone and radio were non-existent.

It was quite a sight to see them all gathered together in one of the most attractive surroundings of the island.

In Salt Spring Island. They sat together under flowering May trees and chatted together not only of the old days, but of television and the wonders of the present age.

Some of the old-timers looked years younger than there age. Others walked with difficulty. They all thoroughly enjoyed themselves in the best way they could.

SOME WERE ABSENT

Among those present was E. Pollard, 80, one of the original pioneers of North Pender Island. Two others from the same island, Hugh Hamilton and Robert Coulson, like many others, were unable to be present at the celebration due to illness.

Chatting and enjoying themselves at the reunion were Premier Byron Johnson and Mrs. Johnson. The Premier appeared to know a number of the pioneers.

Later the Premier in a brief address summed up what we all felt about the pioneers. "We ought to be thankful for what these people did for us," he said. "They opened up a country for us. Many of us today would refuse to live under the same conditions."

OFFICIALS PRESENT

Among others present at the event were Mayor Percy George and Mrs. George, Andrew M. Whisker, M.L.A., Mr. and Mrs. Percy Richards, Ald. R. T. Wilson representing the Mayor of Nanaimo, and Capt. and Mrs. J. T. Hamilton.

Everyone felt very thankful to Mr. Gavin C. Mouat, Ganges, who organized the pioneer reunion, and the Crofton family who made Harbor House available for the occasion. Guests were served a luncheon on arrival and later in the afternoon tea and refreshments on the lawn of the hotel.

The Sidney Junior Band of 40 members provided music for the occasion. School children, girl guides, boy scouts of Salt Spring Island, represented the younger generation.

When the time came to return to Victoria, we felt sorry to have to say goodbye to the old-timers. We all knew there were some we would never see again.

Trooping Color Reaches New High Point

LONDON — Military-minded observers agreed this year's trooping - the color ceremony reached standards of precision rarely achieved.

Queen Mother Mary is understood to have telephoned congratulations to Col. E. R. Hill, who commanded the traditional ritual honoring official observance of the King's birthday.

Guardsmen in scarlet tunics and bearskins paraded from 9 a.m. until noon. They marched, counter-marched or just stood stock still under a broiling sun.

Five men fainted, but only two fell. In the other cases fellow marchers closed in, unseen by the spectators, and kept the groggy Guardsmen going until they came to.

Newspapers reported two possible reasons for the performance. The Daily Express said Guardsmen were given "energy pills" before the ceremony. The Daily Mirror, in a pre-trooping story, said the men might wear dry ice in their hats.

New Publication Praises Canada

A booklet entitled, "Canada, Land of Hope," pointing out new iron discoveries in Quebec and Labrador, oil in Alberta, Canadian achievement in the field of atomic research, and the initiative and industry of Canadian youth, has been published by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. According to the new booklet, Canada offered an opportunity to its citizens second to no other country.

A review and history of Canada in general terms features a large portion of the publication. It predicts that Canada's best days are still ahead.

Pioneer Of Salt Spring Was Premier's Nemesis

Premier Byron Johnson highly respects the athletic qualities of 83-year-old Ernest Harrison, one of the oldest inhabitants of Salt Spring Island.

He told him so when he met the colored man at the Gulf Islands' old-time celebration held at Salt Spring Island, Ganges, Thursday.

"Haven't I met you before," said the Premier with a twinkle in his eyes.

"You certainly did," replied the grand old man, who many years ago was one of the best athletes on southern Vancouver Island. "When you were a boy I chased you several times for trying to get into the baseball park free of charge."

"You certainly were a fast runner," said the Premier, smiling.

But Mr. Harrison seemed to think the Premier in his boyhood days was just as swift with his legs.

The Premier discussed later days when he played lacrosse and Mr. Harrison was an outstanding track runner.

"You know, I believe even today you could beat me in a race," said the Premier.

Retirement Of Admiral Brings Four Navy Shifts

OTTAWA (CP)—A shuffle affecting three of the top administrative posts of the Royal Canadian Navy and four of Canada's senior naval officers was announced today by the Defence Department.

The changes stem from the retirement in September of Rear-Admiral Frank L. Houghton, C.B.E., of Ottawa. Admiral Houghton, 52, has been vice-chief of the naval staff since September, 1947.

His successor will be Rear-Admiral Harry DeWolf, C.B.E., D.S.C., 47, of Bedford, N.S., one of Canada's celebrated naval commanders of the war. He has been Flag Officer, Pacific Coast, since September, 1948, and will take up his new duties at Ottawa Sept. 11.

Succeeding Rear-Admiral DeWolf on the Pacific Coast will be Rear-Admiral Wallace B. Creery, C.B.E., 50, of Vancouver and Ottawa. At present he holds the appointment of chief of naval personnel at headquarters and will take up his new post Aug. 30.

Capt. James C. Hibbard, D.S.C., and Bar, 42, of Hemison, Que., and Victoria, B.C., will succeed Rear-Admiral Creery as Chief of Naval Personnel Aug. 5 and will be promoted to the rank of Acting Commodore. Capt. Hibbard now is taking an advanced staff course.

Both Rear-Admiral DeWolf and Capt. Hibbard will serve as members of the Naval Board when they assume their new appointments.

RESCUED 859

Rear-Admiral DeWolf commanded the destroyer St. Laurent early in the war. Under his command she took part in the evacuation of France and later rescued 859 survivors of the Arandora Star, a liner torpedoed while carrying German and Italian prisoners.

He later commanded the destroyer Haida and after the war commanded the aircraft carriers Warrior and Magnificent, sailing the latter on her maiden voyage from the United Kingdom.

Rear-Admiral Houghton served as a Royal Navy midshipman on Atlantic patrols in the First World War. He once commanded the destroyer Vancouver and during the Second World War for a time was commanding officer of the auxiliary cruisers Prince Robert and Prince Henry in the Pacific and the Aleutians.

It is not clear how much Attlee knew beforehand of the contents of the manifesto.

But some newspapers suggest his first inkling was from the papers themselves Tuesday and that he is bitterly angry over the affair. The Foreign Secretary also is believed angry about publication of the manifesto.

The wrath of both the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary is believed directed mainly at Hugh Dalton, Minister of Town and Country Planning, who headed the committee which drew up the party statement.

Meanwhile, British newspapers all on the Labor government to convince the world of its desire to take part in European economic co-operation, short of complete federation.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian said: "Mr. Dalton must be tethered to a post in one of his national parks and kept strictly out of European affairs."

British Ship Carrying 700 Strikes Mine

HONGKONG (Reuter)—The British ship Anhui, with about 700 Chinese passengers aboard, struck a mine off the south China port of Swatow today. The 3,494-ton Anhui was bound for Swatow from Singapore via Hongkong. Most of the passengers boarded the ship at Singapore.

POLICE TAKE RAMPAGING GI PEACEFULLY

Oklahoma Badman Held In Home Of Fraulein

MUNICH, Germany (UP)—Oklahoma badman Homer Cook, ill with blood poisoning and weak from hunger, surrendered to police without a fight today in the bedroom of his German sweetheart.

Two U.S. military police and six German police closed in on the Munich apartment of a 21-year-old Anna Sporer at 8 a.m., two hours after a German truck driver had reported seeing Cook stagger into the building.

Anna was not at home. Police battered down the door of her flat and found the six-foot-one, 200-pound Cook sprawled out on the bed. He still wore the same fatigue trousers and undershirt in which he escaped 60 hours before from Dachau Prison, 10 miles north of Munich.

The 27-year-old Cook and ex-boxer didn't seem to notice the police until one of them prodded him with a cocked revolver.

"You won't have to use that," Cook said quietly.

He appeared to be in great pain, wincing every time he moved his left arm. It was swollen and black almost to the elbow from a wound in his hand. He had ripped his hand when he scaled a 12-foot wall of the jail and fled into the woods last Tuesday night.

He rose unsteadily to his feet, raised his hands in surrender and smiled sheepishly at the two U.S. military police.

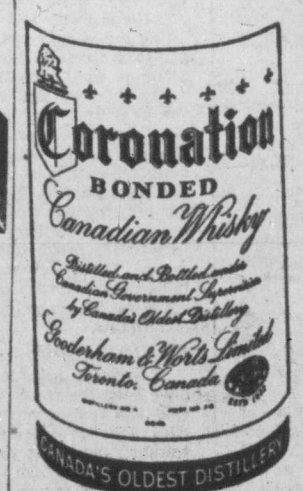

He told police little about what he had done during his 60 hours of liberty that followed his third prison break in two months.

The former GI from Muskogee, Okla., said he had spent Thursday night in the Nuernberg area, but had not heard a radio appeal which his sweetheart made for him to surrender.

The captain said four small shells hit the ship but there were no casualties and no serious damage.

Probe Damage Aboard British Destroyer

DEVONPORT, Devon, Eng. (Reuter)—Suspected sabotage in the destroyer Urania was under investigation by Admiralty police, it was announced today.

Interference in the electrical machinery of the vessel occurred Thursday.

Signalling error caused "first reports to link the suspected sabotage with another destroyer in reserve at Devonport, the Matapan.

The investigations are intended to reveal whether the damage, in which no lives were lost or injuries caused, was intentional or due to negligence.

Shore leave for the ship's personnel was stopped temporarily, but later today week-end leave passes were being issued. Meanwhile a check was being made on identity and movements of all civilian personnel who had worked on the Urania.

The inquiry now under way is the third in 18 months into irregularities at the Devonport yards.

An Admiralty official, slightly qualifying the sabotage element, said "sabotage is always a possibility on such occasions, but it could have been negligence; we do not have enough information yet."

A Soldier Got Impatient

LAST WEEK IN THE HOUSE OF Commons at Ottawa, Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Trade and Commerce, introduced a resolution supporting a bill asking Parliament to grant him and his department ample authority to requisition and obtain defence materials—against the day when and if a war emergency should arise. He was careful to point out to the members that the measure contemplated would be similar to but not as far-reaching as that which clothed him, as Minister of Munitions and Supply, with very wide powers during the war which ended nearly five years ago. The bill passed without an opposition call for a division.

After several days of discussion, plus charges of dictatorship from Progressive Conservative leader George Drew and several of his followers, Major-General G. R. Pearkes, V.C., rose in his seat yesterday afternoon and startled his party colleagues with the statement that these were times that "make such powers (those asked for by Mr. Howe) necessary." The member of the Opposition for Nanaimo elaborated briefly by saying that the old concept of leisurely mobilization for defence had gone, that a nation must be ready to make war on a moment's notice, and that "it is necessary to take measures for preparedness such as have never been taken before."

Nobody likes the delegation of the authority of Parliament to an individual minister or department. Such a procedure is adopted with extreme reluctance by a government and then only in cases of obvious emergency. Mr. Drew and his supporters, of course, require no tutelage on the circumstances which prompted Mr. Howe's request. But the Progressive Conservative Opposition—regardless of its sarcastic references to the government's overwhelming majority in the House, a majority, by the way, recorded by the Canadian people a year ago—has so little about which to complain that it evidently felt the urge to pay more heed to political manoeuvre than to a state of international tension in which this Dominion has unavoidably become enmeshed.

On the other hand, the member for Nanaimo spoke, not as a politician but as a soldier. Obviously he is much less interested in the manufacture of party capital out of a troublesome and threatening international situation, than in discharging his duties as a servant of the people intensely concerned with the security of the nation and in the demand that Canada shall shirk nothing in the obligations inherent in her partnership in the North Atlantic Alliance.

Still fresh in General Pearkes' memory, perhaps, is the Hamilton speech of the mid-twenties when a former leader of the Conservative Party—Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen—laid down the dictum that no Canadian soldier should leave these shores for another war until after a plebiscite had been submitted to the people and they had approved such a policy. And it would not be surprising if Mr. Drew's demand that Parliament be called before extending the powers of the department over which Mr. Howe presides recalled to the distinguished soldier's mind the deplorable state of Canada's defences at the time of the defeat of the Bennett regime in 1935.

But if there is one important point on which the average Canadian prides himself it is that with all the huge spending which this nation did during the Second World War the breath of scandal never touched any minister of the Crown or any department. Mr. Howe, of course, was a successful businessman before he entered the turbulent political atmosphere. It would not surprise us greatly, moreover, if some of the things he did in the discharge of his herculean task were accomplished facts before he obtained even the concurrence of his ministerial colleagues. The head of the department knew what was wanted and did the rest.

Will We Have Them In 1970?

WE PUBLISHED ON THIS PAGE last Monday a few figures on the cost of guarding schools in "Doughbor territory" in this province. The charges represented a sizeable monthly bill. In addition to such expenses, however, there are much greater costs entailed in the damage wrought by the fanatics—the schools, bridges and railway lines and houses burned or otherwise destroyed—and in the provision of police supervision and maintenance of order necessitated by nude parades and illegal activities in the communities of the Doughbors themselves. Removal of the offenders through arrest provides a definite relief to the law-abiding residents of the localities affected, but it is very obvious that the expense does not stop with that solution. In fact, as the Vancouver Daily Province points out, it is likely that Sons of Freedom in prison are much more expensive to the taxpayers of British Columbia than when they are free. The mainline paper argues that the 372 Doughbors recently found guilty will serve about 900 man-years in jail. At the 1949 rate of $1,374.37 to keep a man imprisoned for one year, that would entail a cost to the taxpayers of more than $1,200,000. The problem, therefore, is only half met by periodically imprisoning wrongdoers among the fanatical sect. Some more permanent solution must be found. The light of education must be sent into the backward communities and the rising generation saved from a repetition of the elders' misguided performances. Only thus can this festering spot of medievalism in our progressive land be eradicated. The basic problem cannot be insurmountable.

Working For Improvement

THE SIZE OF THE ENROLLMENT—a record-breaking 1,400-odd this year—and the prestige of the visiting lecturers for the forthcoming classes indicate better than any other factors the importance which has been achieved by the annual Summer School for Teachers organized by the Provincial Department of Education. In its 37th year, the Summer School has attained recognition in educational circles far beyond the boundaries of British Columbia. As a means of bringing the latest classroom techniques to new and veteran teachers it has been found invaluable. As a fount of new philosophies of education, and as a means of contact between teachers and the leading authorities in their profession, it has exerted an influence in our school system far greater than the brevity of the summer courses would seem to indicate. This year, as at other sessions, specialists from Britain and many United States centres will contribute the benefit of their advanced knowledge, in addition to speakers from Canadian universities. A wider appreciation of school problems and their solutions will thus be available to the teachers who for a short time will again become students. It will be time well spent, both for themselves and for the pupils who next year will come under their care—time, be it noted, which might be used in pursuits less profitable to the public were it not for the enthusiasm and desire for improvement which so many of our teachers bring to their work.

Experts Clash On Best Policy To Guarantee Peace For World

By NORA BELOFF From Washington

A SHARP difference of opinion on which is the right road to peace has split the American government from the United Nations Secretariat. The non-Communist world will have to decide one way or the other within the next few weeks.

The American authorities had in fact rejected in advance Secretary-General Trygve Lie's 20-year peace program, of which the first and crucial proposal is top-level negotiations between the big powers.

NEGATIVE ANSWER

This negative answer has been implicit in American foreign policy for many months: it rests on the basic assumption that the Kremlin is both dishonest and aggressive and that negotiations with the Politburo are more likely to increase than diminish dangers of war.

As against Mr. Lie's "peace through discussion," Mr. Acheson proposes "peace through strength." No one who has met both men can seriously question the genuine sincerity of their respective convictions that their policy is the only alternative to war.

The "peace through strength" policy which the American government has chosen means that the West should not discuss basic differences until it is sufficiently strong to approach the Russians on equal terms. Rearmament within the framework of the Atlantic Pact is judged by Mr. Acheson to be a necessary preliminary to what he calls "fruitful negotiations." In Mr. Lie's opinion, on the other hand, "a fresh start" is needed and continued rearmament, far from being fruitful, is on the contrary "a thesis of despair."

While at Lake Success Mr. Lie was developing his peace policy, Mr. Acheson and his advisers in Washington were defining theirs to Congress. The contradiction could not have been more glaringly apparent. Congress was warned that both time and money are needed to make the West defensible against Russian attack and that the Atlantic Pact, far from having reached its goal, was not yet at the half-way mark. Within the United States itself, many people are closer in ideas to Trygve Lie than to their own foreign secretary.

First come the economists, hypersensitive to the American multi-billion dollar deficit, who maintain that the government policies of rearming, reconstructing and financing the whole non-Communist world are certain to lead America to bankruptcy.

Secondly come the people who believe that an armament race is un-Christian and a prolonged "cold war" incompatible with American democracy.

Thirdly, there are those who hold that the Americans with a stockpile of atom bombs are today stronger than the Russians and could strike a better bargain now than later; these same people argue for the same reasons that, if America's terms are rejected, the sooner war comes the better. There is a tendency to assume that the Russians could not drop bombs on American cities today but tomorrow perhaps they could. The American authorities, on the contrary, believe that through the Military Aid Program, scientific progress and collective security, time is on the western side in the cold war.

Achilles' Heel

By JOSEPH ALSOP From Washington

AFTER a long expedition of inquiry abroad, this reporter is convinced that three factors are powerfully working to prevent a third world war from breaking out now or in the near future.

The first factor is the incompleteness of the Kremlin's war preparations. The second is the continuing vulnerability of the Soviet vital centres to the West's superior weight of atomic weapons. These are the temporary obstacles to war, which will be largely or wholly removed when Soviet rearmament reaches its climax in 1953-54.

THE ENDURING obstacle, which will always prevent war if the West is reasonably strong, is simply an inner weakness of the Soviet system. Perhaps the best way to present the factors of this weakness is simply to describe the occasion, last March, on which this reporter glimpsed Stalin's Achilles heel, through the eyes of another man.

The place was the house of an American in one of the less dreadful German cities. The speaker was an intelligent, civilized, youngish German of Junker stock, who had served successfully in the pre-war German embassy in Moscow; as a fighting soldier on the Russian front; and as a member of the inner group of the German general staff.

HIS TALK had a tincture of cosmic comedy, because he was so much possessed by two conflicting rages. He was enraged because Hitler had not been murdered, although he personally had been involved in a whole series of assassination plots, including the great plot of July 20. And he was even more enraged that Germans had not won the war, because Hitler in his folly had refused to use the Russians to beat the Russians.

Of all Hitler's war-time errors, it is now almost certain that history will choose this as the greatest. The plain, documented truth is that at the beginning of the German invasion of the Soviet Union, the vast slave population at the base of the Russian system showed every sign of active disloyalty and incipient revolt. Yet Hitler threw away this incalculable advantage, in order to indulge his own racist whims.

To be brief, when the German invasion began, the Nazi divisions were greeted with bread and salt—the traditional symbols of welcome—in almost every Russian village along the whole front. Among the organized Russian forces, mass surrenders were then common. Most remarkable of all, both the surrendering Russian soldiers and the men of the villages and towns being overrun actually volunteered in great numbers to fight with the Germans against their own people.

AT THE END of three months, sufficient volunteers to form a considerable number of purely Russian divisions under German officers had been collected and were in training. What is more, the average German division in combat on the Russian front was by then composed of 15 per cent of Russians. These Russians in German divisions were first brought into the companies and platoons as hewers of wood and drawers of water, but later used as combat soldiers in German uniform by the divisional commanders. They saved the German armies, that first winter.

Yet it was at this point that Hitler and Himmler intervened. They proclaimed that the Russians were to be treated as an "inferior race." They forbade Russians being admitted to "war comradeship." They ordered the famous scorched earth policy.

THE SCORCHED earth policy instantly revolutionized the attitude of the Russian masses, and gave birth to the partisan movement. The divisional commanders with difficulty retained the Russian soldiers already incorporated into their units, but could take in no more. Only three of the purely Russian divisions under German officers were saved from the German because Count von Stauffenberg hastily sent word to the training camps to have the men write themselves down as "Cossacks," whose racial equality Himmler had oddly admitted.

Even so the Russians in the German divisions fought through to the end of the war. The three so-called Cossack divisions were among the most efficient and most savage in the German army. Even much later, when Hitler and Himmler changed their strange policy on the urging of the general staff, the Russian General Vlasov was able to secure more than a million recruits for his "army" from among Russians in German hands.

"By then," said the embittered German staff officer, "it was no good any more. There were not enough arms."

THE LESSON of these extraordinary facts, which are fully authenticated and form one of the major dossiers of the American policy makers, is very simple indeed. Given the right conditions, the penetration of the closed Soviet system by bodies of foreign troops can become the occasion of a sort of instinctive rising of the enslaved masses. If this is true in Russia, moreover, as the foregoing facts indicate, it is 20 times more true in the satellite area. Anywhere in the satellites, the appearance of a foreign corporal's guard across the border would provoke a great Spartacist rebellion.

This inner Soviet weakness does not mean that complacency and inaction are now justified. On the contrary, if the West remains a military vacuum while Soviet power rapidly grows, the masters of the Kremlin will begin to know that not even a corporal's guard of Western troops can ever cross the borders of their empire. When and if they do come, the danger of the West will be fearful indeed. But if we make ourselves strong, there is no need for fear.

GAS PRICE

With more crude oil than we know what to do with, we hear of an increase in the price of gasoline.

The oil companies must be making large profits when they can give their employees who are on superannuation and are drawing $100 a month, an increase of $25 a month without asking for it.

Also why is it that a one-man commission is given the power to recommend to the Government an increase of one cent a gallon to the consumer? The provincial cabinet will be wise if they turn this increase down.

WAR INEVITABLE?

Your correspondent, Mr. Cadwallader, in his letter of Tuesday, June 13, scored some very good points. In fact, he came very near scoring a bull, and it is very refreshing to find that there is someone who is not afraid and has the courage to voice his convictions.

He must have studied the Good Book, and has a clear conception of the great struggle that is coming, and knows that it is inevitable! Therefore, I may be pardoned for saying that he is one of those that are likened by a certain One to "a man that is an householder, which bringeth forth out of his treasure, things new and old." Matt. XIII, 32. No man can write a letter like that unless he understands and believes in the great plan that runs all through the Bible! Therefore, I could wish that Mr. Cadwallader had told us "why" this great war was certain to come, and why it is inevitable.

It seems to me that the Red Dean and Dr. Endicott are not the only ones who have a misconception of this great plan in the Bible! "This lamp to our feet," Psalm 119-105. Why are they so silent in these days when people are hungering and clamoring for the truth? Come on, Mr. Cadwallader, you must know why this war is inevitable, lighten our darkness, and show us with your able pen, why.

DEBT LAWS

I do not know where "Idathach" gets his or her ideas of laws relating to debt, but I think they are erroneous.

A few years ago, while in England, I read of a case where a youth of 15 was hauled into a police court for non-payment of a municipal tax. In summing up, the magistrate pointed out that the youth being poor could not pay and, being a minor, was unable to dispose of the property. As he was a property owner, he could not draw relief. Being a youth, he could not obtain work and, as he had never worked, he could not draw the unemployment insurance. The magistrate regretted that he had no other expedient but to send the lad to jail.

Because some neurotic person, craving notoriety or sympathy, should prefer to go to jail rather than pay money owing legitimately to the state, is no cause for a revision of one's policies, in my very humble opinion.

'Victory' May Cost Too Much

By JOSEPH LISTER RUTLEDGE

THE late Scott Fitzgerald, the literary wonder-boy of the 20's, once coined an apt phrase: "The victor belongs to the spoils." We remember this when we read, day by day, of this labor victory or that. We cannot be too surprised when, in the exuberance of a successful negotiation, labor leaders speak of a settled strike as a labor victory.

NO EXCUSE

There is no such excuse for the public or the press in so thinking. More often than not it is a Pyrrhic victory, a victory far more costly than defeat, and the victor is indeed a part of the spoils.

These victories of which the costs run into tens and hundreds of millions are costly victories indeed. How many years must pass before the lost savings of the worker are recouped, or the little businesses that depend on the worker's custom get back to normal? How much is gained when not only the worker who secures this Pyrrhic victory, but the worker who doesn't must pay more for the goods produced?

And yet we go on blandly talking of victory. How many real victories have there been, in these past years, when all the costs are in?

It is understandable that labor's leaders, facing the fact that labor's strike gains are lost almost before they are achieved, should look for a scapegoat. They assume that all demands can be paid out of profits, and that where costs increase it is due to the avarice of industry. They have almost succeeded in convincing themselves that this is so. But surely not the rest of us. A little careful thought would fully demonstrate that an increase of say, 10 per cent in wages or equivalent costs would wipe out profits and the industry and the jobs with them.

So the victory can be given a shadow of substance only where the public comes along to foot the bill in added costs.

The victory that nobody talks about, the real and tangible victory that has been responsible for most of the progress of our day, and most of the growing advantages that labor has enjoyed, springs not from conflict but from co-operation, where growing technical improvements provided by industry are used by labor to increase production, and so to reduce prices. These are victories that no one talks about, but they are real and tangible victories, for nobody suffers and everybody gains.

REAL PROGRESS

The wage gains of the past century have been the result of capital using the skill and management to develop industries that provide jobs in which the worker, increasing his effort by use of improving tools, can increase his production and so reduce prices and enlarge demand. This is the triumvirate of real progress, capital and industry and workers. There can be no victory of one over the other. All must win or all must lose. Otherwise the individual victor is only a part of the spoils.

THE grave illness of aged Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts at his home near Pretoria is a matter of deep concern not only to his native South Africa, but to the British Commonwealth, for he long has been a pillar of strength in that great association of nations.

Indeed, this famous soldier-statesman has been more than that, for he has in the truest sense been a world citizen—an outstanding figure of history.

The 80-year-old Smuts has suffered a collapse followed by pneumonia. Should this illness mean that he must abandon politics it may easily create a fresh crisis for the Commonwealth.

It was the Field Marshal himself who in 1917 introduced the idea of the Commonwealth, and he has been the chief link which has held South Africa in that union of nations. Many of his political opponents who now are in power want separation from Britain and the establishment of a republic.

Long prime minister, Smuts was defeated in 1948 by a coalition of Nationalists and Afrikaners. He was succeeded by Dr. Daniel F. Malan, a clergyman who is an isolationist and an advocate of race segregation and white supremacy in South Africa.

Since then Smuts has been leader of the opposition United Party.

Smuts, who once was labeled "the empire's handyman" because of the many duties he performed, first came to prominence as a military leader in the Boer War. In that conflict he rendered yeoman's service to South Africa.

Again at the outbreak of the First World War he got into uniform, this time as a lieutenant-general in the British army and commander-in-chief of the British and South African forces fighting the Germans in East Africa. His success there was followed by a call to membership in the imperial war cabinet in London. And in the Second World War his counsel was sought by Britain.

It fell to Smuts to be one of the planners of both the League of Nations and the United Nations. Great as he has been in war, he always has been an advocate of peace and co-operation among countries.

'KEEP OFF THE GRASS'

Ottawa Journal

According to an item in the papers, some dietitians see considerable value for the human race in grass extracted from grasses. They say all vitamins except D are in grass juice. Let us go slowly on the whole nebulous proposition. Grass juice may be a partial answer to the world's food problem; but at the moment it seems more logical to increase fruits and vegetables before we squeeze the juice of grass.

NO PETTY RETALIATION

Washington Post

Communist reporters who are permitted to enjoy all the privileges accorded American reporters will at least be impressed with the advantages of our system of unrestricted news gathering and uncensored transmission of news. To exclude them from the press galleries merely because their own countries impose restrictions on American reporters and censor their stories would be a petty form of retaliation unworthy of a country that is justly proud of the freedom accorded the press under constitutional guarantees.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

"HATS," said the Elevator Man, "play a big part in our lives. Until the fad of not wearing a hat at all got so popular, you could tell a man's financial and social status by what he wore on his head. A top hat meant top of the heap. A bowler brought you down a peg. The straw, the fedora, the "sportsman" (like Sherlock Holmes), the cap, all had their place in the scale. Nowadays everybody wears the same kind of hat, if he wears one at all, and it's little things—the roll of the brim, the tilt of the crown and the color of the ribbon—that tell the story. What's under the hat is still as hard to gauge as before. Mezzanine!"

"I see," said the Elevator Man, "where the Winnipeg police have followed the Victoria boys and discarded the Bobby's helmet. They were the last in Canada to keep them. When the younger members of the force began to feel self-conscious in them I guess the helmets were doomed. They might give more head protection in a riot, but there aren't many riots. Something a little snappier was wanted. The policemen's union may have made the formal request, but wives and girl friends probably laid the groundwork. Going down!"

"When a man wants to be funny," said the Elevator Man, "he puts his hat on sideways or upside down. If he puts on another man's hat, or a woman's, he always makes a face. The odd hat means humor, and it rarely fails. Taking your hat off can be as important as wearing it—you can use it to signal respect, politeness, grief, enthusiasm and a dozen other feelings. The hatless man is at a disadvantage there. He's a ship without a flag. He may save on overhead but he loses on understanding."

Operate Radio-Controlled Target Craft

Waistline Shows Which Army He's In

By BOB HUTCHISON
Manning a twin six-pounder firing 70 rounds a minute, a group of reserve army soldiers put on a demonstration of target practice Thursday afternoon. The target, a radio-controlled speed boat, zig-zagged up and down Victoria's coastal waters, while the men attempted to hit it.

When asked if they didn't go through a lot of speed boats that way, one "old sweat" said, "Oh, those guys don't hit many, and if they should happen to, those things are made to take it. They are filled with a stuff like cork that makes them float up if they're hit."

Fifty-three members of the 5th Coast Regiment of Victoria and 102nd Coast Regiment of Vancouver are stationed here for a week's intensive summer training. Most of the men are veterans from the last war, although a few of them are men who have never been in the forces before.

Lt.-Col. A. D. Perron, Garrison Commander at Work Point Barracks, said the men are doing exceptionally well.

The camp is under the command of Lt.-Col. C. A. Manson, officer commanding the 102nd Coast Regiment, Vancouver.

The men, who are civilians for most of the year, seem to be enjoying their summer training. One of the few complaints heard is about the early hour the army gets up at. But they seem happy otherwise.

It wasn't too hard to tell the difference between the regular army and the reserves, who were intermingled among them. There was a noticeable difference in the waist lines of the two units. Sunburn on the faces of the reserve boys replaces the tan, tough look of the regular army boys.

But should another war come, these men will be ready and trained to step right into the army and man our coastal defences.

THE HOME GARDEN

Need Good Foundation For Real Rock Garden

By JACK G. BEASTALL
Quite a number of home gardeners are building rock gardens.

Most of these are on the sites of new homes and form a part of the permanent landscaping scheme.

There is a lot of work involved in this preparation and many a backache will be nursed before it is completed. This makes it the more imperative that the job be done well the first time. Before tackling the construction work suppose we ask ourselves if a rock garden is what we really need. Are we going to make a collection of suitable dwarf material, or do we only require a retaining wall to hold the soil at different levels.

Assuming the former to be the case, then our rock garden is to be a place which imitates, as nearly as possible, the natural habitats of the plants we use. This, of course, calls for consideration of the plants themselves. The majority of our rock garden subjects are alpine, that is plants mostly native of the high mountain crags and screes of the Alps and Himalayas.

In the short alpine summer the plants live under a baking sun, but at this time the roots need ample moisture. This is provided by the water from melting snows which permeates the crevices and trickles down the crevices. To survive this parching summer in the shallow surface soil, the plants develop long roots which penetrate the rock crevices and secure their nourishment from the cool, damp depths.

Our first job, therefore, is to prepare ample drainage and a rich, moisture-holding soil.

COOL ROOT RUN

The main purpose of the rocks themselves is to provide the necessary cool root run. This purpose is never attained by placing the odd rock here and there in a mound of soil. The face of our mound must be constructed of rock, with rich soil between and below each piece.

Considering the pleasure a rock garden can give in every month of the year, and for many years to come, it is well worth our while to do a good job on the foundation.

NATURE PROBLEM

Biological Dog Trouble Might Recur

There appeared to be some concern in Saanich police court Thursday over the advisability of allowing Frederick George Smith to keep a female dog.

"You know what happens when he keeps them around," commented Magistrate Henry C. Hall to Claude L. Harrison, prosecutor, with a knowing shake of his head.

This could be taken to mean the same trouble might arise next year about this time, although the magistrate did not elaborate. Judging from the laughter, some of the audience got the same idea.

This arose over whether the Calumet Avenue "dog man" must reduce his original pack of about 32 of all sizes and breeds to a single dog. He has two left, one a female.

"However, it isn't altogether unreasonable for a man to have two dogs," the magistrate considered.

"That's all right if he wants to pay licenses for two," agreed Claude L. Harrison.

The result is that Mr. Smith get another week either to get licenses for both or to get rid of them. He will appear in court next Thursday afternoon.

Hail Increases Fruit Losses In Okanagan

KELOWNA (CP)—Hail Thursday ripped through already ravaged orchards at Okanagan Mission, near here, while fruit industry representatives were meeting to consider losses suffered through winter damage.

The hail added to the woes of fruit growers, who estimate last winter's loss at more than $8,400,000 on the basis of last year's crop returns.

Orchard owners say this figure will be much higher when severance of income to growers for the next five to 12 years is taken into consideration.

The fruit growers at the emergency meeting passed a resolution asking the B.C. government to set up machinery to alleviate the distress conditions even if it means calling a special session of the Legislature.

The resolution further requests both federal and provincial aid in rehabilitating growers on the same basis as assistance was given Fraser Valley farmers in 1948 and the Manitoba flood victims this spring.

Group Criticized On Plan For Sending Food To China

Efforts of a newly-formed Canadian organization to send food to China would be "a drop in the bucket and have little value," Aubrey Walker, world traveler and 30-year resident of Shanghai, told members of the Cosmopolitan Club Thursday.

Reason behind Mr. Walker's skepticism of the success of the organization was his belief contributions would fall into the wrong channels.

The speaker illustrated his address with films of Shanghai and Honolulu, depicting conditions there 23 years ago.

Communist rule could never hold the masses of China for long, Mr. Walker said.

He explained how the coolies lived on a day-to-day basis, never thinking of tomorrow.

U.S. Planning Crackdown On Butterleggers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal officials are preparing to crack down on an expected country-wide wave of phony butter sales next month.

The United States Food and Drug Administration, it was learned today, has asked Congress for nearly $1,000,000 to enlarge its enforcement staff for a drive against "butterleggers."

The request was prompted by fears that when federal taxes on margarine end June 30 there will be widespread substitutions of colored margarine for butter by "unscrupulous people."

There will be a price spread of nearly 40 cents a pound between the retail prices of butter and margarine when the federal taxes are lifted.

Officials of the Food and Drug Administration are known to have told Senators that past checks indicate at least 10,000 public eating places in the United States will try to sell margarine as butter "in violation of the law."

When Congress voted to end taxes on margarine this year, it set up regulations intended to make sure that consumers will know when they are buying colored margarine.

Eating places which use this product must post signs saying so, and each serving must be triangular in shape or labeled as margarine.

Similarly all manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers must identify colored margarine and package it so that it cannot be confused with butter.

Officials said the "expected" "butterlegging" will be difficult to detect and prosecute successfully.

The food and drug administration said it plans these checks:

1. A visit twice a year to all manufacturers of margarine. There are 60 of them, but the number is expected to expand greatly with the license and taxes ended.

2. A check of 4,000 wholesalers and distributors, or about one in five of the estimated 20,000 throughout the country.

3. A check of 100,000 public eating places, or about one in five among the more than 500,000.

DAY OF WHITE MAN IN ASIA NEAR END

Natives, Foreigners both Talk Of 'When' Not 'If' Reds Come; U.S. Widely Blamed

(The following survey of southeast Asia by an Associated Press photographer is based on a two months' trip through Burma, Thailand, Indochina and Malaya. He is now back at his Tokyo post.)

By CHARLES P. GORRY

TOKYO (AP)—The day of the white man is ending in southeast Asia and the day of the Asiatic and the Communist is dawning.

That is the major impression I brought back to Japan after two months in four tense countries in which the people talk of "when" and not "if"—the Communists will arrive.

They will clean up a lot of mistakes which have been made out here since the end of the war. Then we'll take care of the Communists.

It is not just a personal impression. It is what I was told by British planters sipping gin drinks in Singapore, by American workers at a tin mine in Malaya, by a grizzled old Frenchman who runs a hotel at Siemreap on the hot and humid Indo-China seacoast.

It is what I felt after talking with a tired French official in Phnompenh, Indo-China, with frustrated British airmen and sweating British soldiers in Malaya, with a soft-spoken politician in Rangoon and with a Chinese editor in Singapore.

In all those tense countries there is another feeling: That it is very late, possibly too late, for the western powers to do anything.

WAR NOT 'COLD'

I learned, too, there isn't a cold war going on in Malaya, Indo-China and Burma. It is a hot war in which men are dying every day in fights pitting rockets against bows and arrows, airplanes and machine guns against home-made mines and Asiatics against white men.

The war isn't all in the jungle, either. It is on the roads and railways, in the hotel lobbies and city streets.

It isn't a big war of divisions against divisions, of hundreds of airplanes against other air fleets. It is a war of the knife and the quickly-thrown grenade, of shadow fighting; a small-scale raiding war in the dark and rain. But men are dying every day in that war and white men are losing.

In Malaya, the bandits raid the villages at night. More than likely they are using weapons dropped or furnished them by the Allies to fight the Japanese. In the daytime the R.A.F. bombs and strafes the countryside in an effort to kill them.

FLIERS FRUSTRATED

And the R.A.F. pilots? In Kuala Lumpur they told me they were frustrated because they can't see they are making any progress against the bandits.

Malaya seemed more unsettled to me than did Indo-China or Burma. But most of Frenchmen I saw in Indo-China struggled in discouragement about the war. They say they aren't making any headway either.

I saw a plane-load of French paratroopers take off from Phnompenh to drop against the Communist-Vietminh forces. I was told later the Vietminh killed most of them as they floated down.

There is strong feeling against the United States in southeast Asia. That feeling is strong among the white men still there as well as among the natives. Americans are blamed for the present trouble. But I couldn't find anyone anywhere who knew how to stop it—except the Communists. They are promising the people "liberation."

A Burmese newspaperman indicated one way the southeast Asians are thinking.

Miss K. Agnew Gives Painting To Gallery

OTTAWA (CP)—An oil painting by the 19th century historic painter, Carl Weimar, has been added to the National Gallery's permanent collection.

H. O. McCurry, gallery director, told a meeting of the gallery board of trustees that the painting, depicting the abduction of Daniel Boone's daughter by Indians, was the gift of Miss Kathleen Agnew of Victoria. Her family had been in possession of the painting for nearly a century.

Other gifts include a painting by the 19th century Canadian artist F. A. Verne of "Ojibway Indians—Lake Superior."

The water color was presented by Miss Tudor Mont-Zambert of Ottawa, in memory of Mrs. Noulan Cauchon, also of Ottawa.

A third painting, a portrait of the Toronto woman sculptor, Frances Loring, was given the gallery by Florence Wyle of Toronto. The portrait was done by Lillian Newton of Montreal.

The trustees discussed the question of a site for the new National Gallery.

The meeting learned the gallery had launched an extended project of reproductions. It is hoped to make facsimile reproductions of important Canadian pictures available at a modest price both in Canada and abroad.

AUSSIES END BUTTER RATION

CANBERRA (Reuter) — Australia today ended butter rationing. It was imposed June 6, 1943, at a half-pound a person weekly to make available butter for Britain, where the ration was half an ounce. A year later the Australian ration was cut to six ounces.

REPORT FROM VETERANS' HOSPITAL

Dean Of Ward B Has 3 Loves—People, Life, Talk

By TOM MERRIMAN

WARD B, Veterans' Hospital—Seventy-two-year-old John Roberts, old-time Victorian now in B Ward, has had to slow up his pace and it's getting him down.

The alert little Welshman, who is dean of the ward, organizer of the bridge and crib games, collector for the flood relief fund, the Red Cross, the Solarium and everything else that is going, is a wheel-chair patient as a result of several operations that became necessary late in his life.

The only thing appropriate about the wheel-chair is that Robby has spent most of his busy life on wheels.

He held a chauffeur's license in his native land as far back as 1904. Two years after, he came to Canada, and has been driving his or somebody else's car ever since. During World War I he drove an ambulance overseas and at the old Esquimalt Hospital.

10 HAPPIEST YEARS

What he describes as the 10 happiest years of his life were when he was driver of the Fitzherbert-Bullens' car. Mr. Fitzherbert-Bullen died a year after he started the job. Then he drove for Mrs. Fitzherbert-Bullen.

His employer as a talented artist took innumerable trips up Vancouver Island, usually with a friend going for the drive. She selected the most attractive spots to halt so she could set up her easel and paint.

Other jobs he did were jitney driving, war truck driving, motor delivery and his own taxi.

Robby loves people, loves life, loves meeting people and loves talking.

WANTS GAS MOTOR

"If only this wheel-chair had a gasoline motor it would be fine," he says.

"There are so many things to do, so many people to see, I can't get around fast enough: if there's a little bit of a hill I'm stuck like a car out of gas."

He searches the classified ads longingly, hoping sometime to see a used motor-powered wheel-chair within his limited price range.

INADEQUATE BRAKES

A fine of $15 was imposed against motorist Albert H. Walsh, 316 Douglas Street, in city police court today. He pleaded guilty to having inadequate brakes on his car. Charge followed a collision.

Currency Barriers To Immigration

Commons Told Britain's Rules Stop Many Coming To Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Immigration Minister Harris told the Commons Thursday that little can be done to increase the flow of immigrants to Canada from the United Kingdom until currency problems are solved.

Speaking after representatives of various parties had urged acceptance of a greater number of immigrants, Mr. Harris said currency restrictions are preventing many persons from coming to Canada.

Britain permitted emigrants to take out £1,000 over a four year period. He had seen press reports which indicated the British government soon may consider allowing emigrants to take out a larger portion of the £1,000 in the first year. Mr. Harris said he could not comment on the reports.

Speakers in the debate on the immigration department's estimates for 1950-1951 included E. D. Fulton (P.C.-Kamloops), P. E. Gagnon (Ind.-Chicoutimi), H. W. Herdridge (C.C.F.-Kootenay West), H. A. MacKenzie (L.-Lambton-Kent) and George Murray (L.-Cariboo).

URGENT CONFERENCE

Mr. Fulton said no time should be lost in convening a Dominion-provincial conference to discuss immigration. Any immigration scheme should be worked out in conjunction with the provinces because the immigrants became residents of the different provinces once they were brought to Canada by the federal government.

Mr. Gagnon said all immigration should be cut off until there are enough jobs for all Canadians.

Mr. MacKenzie said he believed a target of 100,000 to 200,000 immigrants a year would be a fair figure. The government might consider subsidizing immigration.

Mr. Herdridge said the government was tackling the immigration problem on an individual basis without thought to overall development of Canada. There was no consultation with the provinces.

Mr. Murray suggested the government invite the 90,000 Americans who helped build the Alaska Highway during the war to come back to this country and take up land in the vast Northwest Territories and Peace River district.

SECRETS ACT

The day brought these other developments:

1. Justice Minister Garson obtained first reading of a bill that would give the government broad new powers under the Official Secrets Act and authorize a doubling of the act's top penalty—from seven to 14 years—for espionage and related activities.

2. Members adopted a bill giving Trade Minister Howe, wide powers to make defence purchases in peacetime. Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., Na-naimo, indicated his disagreement with his party's criticism of the measure by saying he believed the current situation made wide powers necessary if Canada is to be ready for war at any time.

Later, outside the chamber, Gen. Pearkes told reporters his remarks were made "in anger," at the way things are going, but denied there was a party cleavage.

3. First reading was given to a bill giving Canada's 5,000 Eskimos the right to vote in federal elections.

WANT OLD DOCUMENTS ON CANADA

OTTAWA (CP)—The citizenship department is considering arranging a collection of historic Canadian documents to stir a greater interest in things Canadian, Citizenship Minister Harris told the Commons Thursday night.

The exhibit would be aimed at arousing interest not only of new Canadians but of "older" Canadians as well.

He was replying to a suggestion made previously by John Diefenbaker (P.C.-Lake Centre)—that Canada set up a "freedom" train of historic documents similar to that which toured the United States a year ago.

Publicity On Flood Harms Winnipeg Industrially

WINNIPEG (CP)—W. H. Carter, president of the Winnipeg Electric Company, said Thursday night the world publicity given to the floods had dealt a severe blow to the industrial potential of Greater Winnipeg and the province.

He told a general meeting of the Industrial Development Board of Greater Winnipeg that new industries would not feel inclined to take a chance on setting up factories here unless given some assurance against new disasters.

Mr. Carter said it was his personal opinion that "we've sold the flood." He added: "As far as industry is concerned the flood did not do a great deal of damage and there was little disruption of industry caused in the city of Winnipeg."

The Victoria Cross was instituted by Queen Victoria at the close of the Crimean campaign in 1856.

Billy Pierce Finally Lives Up To Prediction Of Connie Mack

NEW YORK (UP)—It took six long years, but little lefty Billy Pierce of the Chicago White Sox—with the season's first one-hitter—finally made good today on a prediction that Connie Mack made for him at the Polo Grounds of all places—in 1944. Young Pierce had just pitched his team to victory in a boys' all-star game between the best kid hand-lotters in the nation. Mack was honorary manager of one squad and Mel Ott of the Giants bossed the other. As the game ended, Mack beamed at the 17-year-old southpaw and said: "That lad some day is going to pitch just as good a game for some big league ball club—and I'd like it to be mine."

Mack didn't get young Billy for his team because the Detroit Tigers spotted him on the same Detroit and let that produced Tiger pitching stars Hal Newhouse, Art Houtteman, and Ted Gray.

Pierce didn't make it in Detroit, however, and the slow-developing youngster moved on to the White Sox, where he set nothing on fire but Manager

Tost-Fleming Lead Clubs To Smart Triumphs

If sore arm Lou Tost is the toast of Oakland today, then Mr. Les Fleming poses a serious threat to sobriety in San Francisco across the bay.

Tost, plagued most of this Coast League season with a gimpy wing, turned in a masterful third hit for the second place Oaks last night and blanked the skidding San Diego Padres 9 to 0.

Fleming, the hefty San Francisco first baseman, broke up a 14-inning pitching duel between Chet Johnson and Portland's Red Adams with a sharp single that gave the Seals a 2 to 1 victory.

Oakland's triumph, combined with Hollywood's second straight loss to Sacramento, moved the Acoms to within four games of first place.

At Los Angeles, the Angels and the Seattle Rainiers became involved in a three-hour swatting marathon which the Rainiers finally won 10 to 9.

Run Of Big Salmon Hits Inlet With First Derby Carded Sunday

Salmon fishing really came on in Saanich Inlet this week with a number of bronze-button-size salmon being taken. It was the first run of heavies of the year.

This is good news for the angling clan who have hopes of crashing the prize list in Sunday's opening derby of the year in the Inlet.

Leading the parade for big catches this week were the nine salmon weighed in Wednesday at Goldstream end by Fred Acres, Dunc McKerracher, Cec Casey, and Wilf Mawhinney. Weights were 20½, two 18, 12, 11, 9 and 7 pounds and two blues.

Up at the other end Harry Peard reported that Jack Felton, Jack Goulding and Stan Richard, out on two trips, caught 15 small salmon.

George Knight registered a 19½-pounder, Vince Reid 10 and 15-pounders, Mrs. Marion Reid, a 20½-pounder (she was not a V.S.I.A. member), and Roy Reid, an eight-pounder, Peard said.

The Heglins are back taking their share of the offerings. Cliff got salmon weighing 22, 20½ and 7 pounds; Ann scoring 20½, 6 and 5½-pounders. Frank Thew and A. J. Strom reeled in six, largest 15½ pounds.

Largest Goldstream-end salmon of the week was reeled in by Peggy Hall, wife of George. She hooked a 25½-pounder, George a 12½-pounder, Peggy already has her button.

When Margaret Hall, bride of Art, hooked into her 23-pounder Wednesday morning, she had to call for help from hubby to gaff it. She put in the first woman's claim for a button this year.

Most fish are being taken deep, plugs and spoons being the lures. Mrs. R. Reuber, Stockton, Calif., was among the visitors trying their luck on the Inlet during the week. She caught a 13-pound salmon, George Douglas, fishing light, caught one 10½ pounds, S. Lane, 12½ pounds.

Other Hall's-end catch during the week: Tuesday, Gordon Ball, 21½, 10 and 8 pounds; Monday, Deputy Police Chief Harry Mercer, 19½, one smaller; Sunday, Eric Hutchinson, 19 lbs. 14½ ounces; Lorne Heglins, 23½ pounds; Clarence Rhode, 21 pounds; A. S. Ward, 13½ pounds, and W. C. Ball, 16 and 12 pounds.

Proceeds from Sunday's game will be turned over to the Solarium.

Ben Ethier Pacing Softball Stickers

Whoever said that pitchers can't hit should take a look at the Senior A Softball League averages released today.
In games to date the first three leaders are double duty men. Ben Ethier of the Bluebird Cabs has appeared in eight games, both on the mound and in the field, and is clipping off the high percentage of .526.

Aspinall Stops Garrison Nine

Yarrows moved closer to second place in the Senior B Men's Softball League race last night by edging the runner-up Garrison nine, 5 to 4.
Tommy Walker homered for the dockworkers while Turner and Craig hit for the circuit in Garrison's losing cause.

Alf Aspinall was the winning pitcher as he set Garrison down with six hits and every other game for the Aces, is slugging at the rate of .425, and Ken Gunter of Douglas Tire who has been in nine games, once in the outfield, has 9 hits in 22 times at bat for third place with a .409 average.

SAVOLD WILL DEFEND TITLE

LONDON (UP)—Lee Savold of Paterson, N.J., and his manager, Bill Daly, signed contracts with promoter Jack Solomons today to defend Savold's British version of the world heavyweight boxing title in June, 1951, at London's White City Stadium.

After Savold had loaded the bags with two away in the first round and failed to score the A's took a 1 to 0 edge in their half when Marty Krug romped home from second on Gene Thompson's double.

An unlearned run off Marshall tied the score in the third. With one out Peterson walked and scored when Krug allowed Bartle's single to get past him for a two-base error. After Marshall and Ronning took their early showers Smith came on to retire the next two batters without further damage.

A's regained their one-run margin in the fifth when Weatherwax wound up at second on Jimmy Moore's double.

Salem came back to tie it up in the eighth. Bartle dropped a blooper double down the right field line, moved along to a third on a passed ball by Weatherwax and completed the circuit when Weatherwax flied deep to right.

Tacoma whipped the Yakima Bears, 4 to 2, but saw its league lead dwindle to five games in view of Wenatchee's twin win.

For the second time in as many nights, Tri-City dumped Spokane with help from a bad throw. Joe Rossi clouted his 10th homer of the year for the losers in the seventh. It was the second night in a row that Jim Olsen entered the game as a relief hurler and earned the victory.

First Game—
Wenatchee 14 16 2
Yakima 2 4 1
Tacoma 3 2 6
Spokane 4 6 1
Tri-City 2 4 1
Rockey, Kahout (8) and Rossi; Stone, Roanbeck (8), Olsen (9) and Peutz.

ST. LOUIS (UP)—The regular season ban on player deals clamped down on the major leagues today, with only the St. Louis Browns and New York Yankees beating the deadline at midnight with a swap.

The Browns and Yankees swapped eight players in what Brownie president William DeWitt called a "$500,000" deal but other baseball men viewed more cheaply.

The Yanks, seeking pitching strength in their efforts to repeat as world champions, obtained two hurlers—30-year-old Joe Ostrowski and 35-year-old Tom Ferrick—plus two players for their Kansas City farm team, pitcher Sid Schacht and infielder Leo Thomas.

In return the Yanks gave up infielder George Stinweis—the American League batting king in 1945 with a mark of .339 but no longer a regular, rookie out-

Kronberg's Line Double Big Blow

Smith Hurls Smart Game To Trim Salem

By PETE SALLAWAY
Joe Kronberg, hustling third sacker who has shown plenty of improvement since he joined the club, supplied the pay-off blow to give Victoria Athletics a well-deserved 3 to 2 triumph over Salem Senators as the W.L.L. teams opened a four-game series at Athletic Park last night before 2,100. Win strengthened Victoria's hold on seventh place with the cellar-dwelling Vancouver Capilanos dropping a pair to Wenatchee, 3 to 1 and 14 to 9.

With the score deadlocked 2 to 2 in the bottom of the eighth, the A's salted it away when K Chorlton tripled to right centre and Kronberg followed with a line double to the opposite side.

Pitching hero of the game was big right-hander Ronnie Smith, who turned in a beautiful relief job after taking over from John Marshall in the top of the third when the latter was kicked out of the game along with catcher Al Ronning by plate umpire Gordie Perkins. Smith allowed only three hits over six and two-thirds innings and gave only one run in the eighth and it was unearned.

ANOTHER RHUBARB

Getting back to the banishment of Marshall and Ronning. To everybody but himself, Perkins missed four pitches on two batters in the third inning to get into the jam. On the fourth call Ronning protested and was thrown out. As Marshall walked in from the mound Perkins pointed to him and shouted "You're dead too." There was no reason for ejecting Marshall as he hadn't said a word. Naturally the crowd were on Perkins for the remainder of the game.

Throughout the game it appeared Perkins was determined to show his authority. The rhubarb was just one of several he has been mixed up in this season.

Manager Marty Krug announced after the game Marshall would get the starting assignment again tonight.

A's not only beat Salem but turned the trick at the expense of their number one pitcher—John Tierney. It was his third defeat against 11 victories.

After Salem had loaded the bags with two away in the first inning and failed to score the A's took a 1 to 0 edge in their half when Marty Krug romped home from second on Gene Thompson's double.

fielder Jim Deising, and pitchers Don Johnson and Duane Pillette, and—$50,000 in cash.

DeWitt said each of the players he received was worth $50,000, hence the total of a half-million dollars.

Elsewhere the trading deadline passed with plenty of rumors buzzing around but no actual deals.

Hottest of the whispers was the one that had the New York Giants dealing outfielders Monte Irvin and Pete Milne to the Pittsburgh Pirates for Wally Westlake.

That one died a quick death. Pirate general manager Roy Hamer snorted: "That's the sweetest deal I ever heard of. I can assure you when we do make a deal it'll be better than that. Irvin and Milne for Westlake—Ha!"

Danny Gardella Claims Payoff To Drop Suit

Blasts Baseball After Failure To Stay With Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Danny Gardella today said he was "paid something" to drop his $300,000 suit against organized baseball.

The husky little outfielder was questioned on the suit's abrupt ending as he packed his bags to return to his New York home after being placed on the inactive list by the Houston club of the Texas League.

He told a reporter: "You might say that Gardella was paid something to drop his suit. That is all."

He did say he had to pay his lawyers more than half of the amount received. He blamed the suit for his being released by Houston, a St. Louis Cardinal farm club.

"It was not my spirit or hustle that brought about my release," he said, "but principally because of my suit against baseball. I was told, of course, that I was not a hitter."

He then threw verbal blasts at organized baseball, baseball's Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler, manager Eddie Dyer of the Cardinals, Joe Mathis, Cardinal farm system boss, and manager Bennie Borgmann of the Houston club.

Chandler banished Gardella from organized baseball for jumping to the Mexican League in 1946.

Schalk Returns As Manager Of Buffalo Bisons

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Buffalo Bisons, who haven't been living up to their International Baseball League championship title of late, have summoned Ray Schalk from retirement to take over as manager.

Schalk, former major-league catcher who ran the Bisons from 1932 to 1937, succeeds Frank Skaff at the head of the last-place club.

Skaff, with three seasons of managerial experience behind him, was a freshman in the International League. He succeeded Paul Richards, who piloted the Bisons to the pennant last year.

Skaff will remain with Philadelphia Athletics organization as supervisor of several farm clubs.

FROM THE FANSTAND

By PETE SALLAWAY, Times Sports Editor

The Boston Massacre may have started some definite action to give the pitchers in baseball a better break. When the Boston Red Sox scored 49 runs in two days to literally scalp the St. Louis Browns, they could possibly have provided the clincher in the move to provide the hurlers with a new lease on life.

In recent days I have come across two authoritative articles on the subject. One dealt with the possibility of returning the spit ball to the list of legal pitches while the other has to do with deadening the ball.

Would Be Deadly Weapon

In the opinion of such a great baseball authority as Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers the spit ball would turn the present style of baseball upside down. It would lengthen the life of the pitchers and give the moundsmen some measure of protection against the power hitters. To back up his argument, Rickey points to the success enjoyed by those spit-balling tossers, Burleigh Grimes, Red Faber and Jack Quinn. Both Faber and Quinn stayed up in the big time until well on in their forties.

One of the greatest supporters in favor of deadening the present Jack rabbit ball is venerable Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics. Mack points to the box scores and big innings to support his theory. Pitchers act as though they were taking their lives in their hands, Mack claims.

They Don't Catch Balls

Manager Red Rolfe of the Detroit Tigers is another who would like to see a deader ball introduced. The great Tris Speaker used to argue that any ball hit in the air inside of a ball park should be caught. "Well," says Rolfe, "there are two or three outfielders playing now who run just as fast as did Speaker and they don't catch balls hit inside the parks. Outfielders have to practically play out of sight these days, because a club has to protect itself against the long ball. A great deal of the beautiful infield play of years ago has been thoroughly dissipated. The ball is hit through the infield like a bullet. With everybody swinging for the fences and stands it is my belief that some pitchers are afraid to put the ball over the plate."

From Here And Everywhere

Don Alfano who made his debut in the line-up of the Victoria Athletics Wednesday night was voted the most valuable player with Des Moines of the Class A Western League in 1948. Alfano is the property of the Chicago Cubs and came to the A's on a 30-day loan basis.

Former Athletic Frank Logue is doing alright for himself with Muskegon in the Class A Central League. The bespectacled right-hander threw his eighth straight victory without a loss the other night to set up a new league mark. Pitching in the W.I.L., a Class B circuit, Logue was never that effective.

Athletics are in the market for an outfielder. At present they are trying to deal with Spokane for the services of Paul Zaby. The Indians have been unable to come to terms with the long-ball-hitting fly-chaser.

Eddie Arcaro Ranks As Continent's Top Rider

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Let's take a little ride with wily Eddie Arcaro, the jockey who has ridden great horses as well as prime glue-factory prospects.

At the ripe age of 34, the little Italian booter is still the most-sought-after jockey in the United States. He's a free lancer, and picks his mounts.

In the spring of 1948 Eddie agreed to ride Citation for Calumet Farm. Citation won 15 races, lost one under Arcaro that year and earned $644,995.

In 1949 Arcaro, rode horses that earned $1,183,309. Arcaro had 870 mounts, with 194 winners. Top riders must be athletes, just as much as a football player, fighter or baseball player. It requires muscles and nerve as well as brains to handle more than half-a-ton of surging horse-flesh.

POKER FACE—Arcaro takes calmly the occasional booing of the race crowd. He manages to keep a poker face.

"It's easy to ride a horse from the grandstand," he once remarked. Eddie has won four Kentucky Derbies, more than any other rider. He has won three Preakness stakes, four Belmonts. Name a great race and look in the record book. Somewhere, some year, you'll find Arcaro listed as the rider of the winner.

Until 1946 he was a contract rider for Greentree Stable. That meant getting up with the chickens to exercise horses. Not now. He has reached that happy state where he can be his own boss.

"Once you sleep in silk pyjamas you don't like to get up in the morning."

Minor Baseball Games Canceled—All Minor Baseball Association games next week have been canceled because of school examinations. The various league schedules are thus set back one week.

Little's Subpar 67 Best; Hogan Falters

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UP)—Veteran Lawson Little, still fit and fairway-fine at 40, had the nation's younger golf stars at his heels and said he aimed to keep them there today in the second and third rounds of the $15,000 round-robin tournament.

The husky, greying iron-ace from Monterey, Calif., played some of the finest golf of his career yesterday over the rain-drenched Wykagyl course to card a stylish five-under-par 67.

His performance, which included seven birdies, gave him a point total of plus 15 and a comfortable four point margin over curly-haired Jack Burke Jr. of White Plains, N.Y., who was runner-up with plus 11, thanks to his flashy 69.

While everything the burly Little hit turned to birdies, everything national open champion Ben Hogan hit appeared to go awry. Hampered more than the others by the slick, wet underfooting, Hogan, along with George Fazio of Washington, wound up with the day's poorest score of 76. Hogan, playing in a foursome with Sammy Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W.V., Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., and Burke, showed a minus 17, while Fazio had an even worse minus 21.

In Burke's foursome, Demaret and Snead each carded 71's to emerge with plus threes.

FERRIER THIRD—Big Jim Ferrier of San Francisco carded a 71 and was in third place with a plus seven total. Herman Barron, the plodding pro from White Plains, made his 70 do for a plus five total while Cary Middlecoff of Ormond Beach, Fla., and Chick Harbert of Detroit were bracketed with Lloyd Mangrum, Demaret and Snead at plus three apiece.

Vernon Returns To Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mickey Vernon, veteran Cleveland first-baseman, returned Wednesday to Washington Senators for a second term in a trade which sent Dick Weik, a young, promising but currently wild speed-ball hurler, to the Indians.

The deal ends the Washington club's quest for a first-baseman to take the place of Eddie Robinson, who was sent to Chicago White Sox along with pitcher Ray Scarborough recently for second-baseman Cass Michaels, pitcher Bob Kuzava and outfielder John Ostrowski.

Vernon, usually a good fielder, is 32.

CITATION NOOR HOOK UP AGAIN

ALBANY, Calif. (AP)—One of racing's widely discussed rematches—Citation versus Noor—appeared set today for Saturday at Golden Gate.

Barring last minute decisions to the contrary, the two great rivals will match speed in the $10,000 added mile and one-eighth Forty-Niners Handicap.

Citation and his Irish-bred nemesis last met in the San Juan Capistrano Handicap at Santa Anita. Noor hung a nose decision on his rival.

EDMONTON (AP)—Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada Football Conference today signed two former Texas Christian University footballers. Peter Dixon tossed shutout ball last night as Sooke defeated View Royal, 13 to 0, in a Colwood and District Junior Softball League game at Sooke.

Lackie Named Head Of Commercial Hockey Loop

Jim Lackie is the new president of the Commercial Hockey League.

The popular sports official was elected to that post at last night's annual league meeting. He succeeds Don Huckin who will act as league vice-president this season.

Laurie Given was re-elected to the secretary's position.

Lackie in his acceptance address stressed the need for a league constitution in order to clarify such points as transfer dates, player limits, use of junior players and residence rules.

Following the president's recommendations delegates voted to set the player limit at 20 with a provision that Navy be allowed to replace players drafted through the season. Other clubs will be allowed to place players moving out of the district.

A tentative constitution will be drawn up and presented at the next general meeting.

It was also decided to retain the present six-team league and to continue post-season playoff with the Vancouver Commercial League winner.

Line Changes In Effect For Shamrocks Tonight

Coach Arnold Ferguson of the Shamrocks plans to throw one powerful scoring combination at the Indians tonight in Vancouver Forum as the local intercity lacrosse club attempts to halt a two-game losing streak.

Rather disgusted with the team's showing in Wednesday night's defeat by Indians here and the complete lack of scoring punch exhibited in the club's first game under the seven-man rules, the playing mentor today announced several line-up changes.

First of all, Jack Thompson of the Foul Bay Senior B club will replace Al Denoni, who played his first game with the team Wednesday. Denoni started off well enough but lack of condition told in the late stages of the contest.

Thompson is a rugged performer and will patrol one of the wings on the Larry Booth-Steve Rynoski forward line.

Darrell Popham moves up to rover on this line with Red McMillan dropping back to defence. Ferguson figures this will give the second unit added scoring power. Len Scott will pair with McMillan on the back line.

DEFENCE CHANGE

This change allows Ferguson and Coates, the other defence duo, to play behind the first string line which remains the same with Fred Ranson at rover, Art Green at centre and Ed Popham and Duff McCaghey on the wings. Coates and Ferguson previously played defence on the second unit.

With the club's leading goal-getters—Coates, Ferguson and McCaghey—on the floor at the same time the Indians' defence should be in for a busy evening. Vic Sage will remain as the utility man.

Richmond Stars In Moose Victory

Scoring the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning Moose last night edged Toppers 3 to 2 for their first victory in the city Women's Softball League.

Tonight Red's Service will meet Adverts at lower Central and Allsorts will travel to Sidney for a game with North Saanich. Both Red's and North Saanich have yet to taste defeat.

Short score follows:

Jackie Hayes Recovers From Stab Wounds

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP)—Jackie Hayes, a double-play artist with the Chicago White Sox until blindness wrecked his brilliant career, was recovering today from stab wounds, apparently self-inflicted.

Doctors said Hayes, described as "one of the best pivot men baseball has seen," was more than holding his own although weak from loss of blood.

Members of his family said he apparently didn't remember the events of yesterday when he was found with deep cuts in his chest and arms. They said Hayes already had asked about his eight-year-old son, Jackie, and about the seeing-eye dog that had been his constant companion since 1944.

Normal School Celebrates

Pictured at Provincial Normal School banquet are Miss Mary Francis, valedictorian and winner of Dr. Denton Memorial Award for outstanding student, and H. O. English, school principal.

Straith Lauds Idealism Of Teachers At Banquet

The "fine idealism" of the new generation of teachers was lauded by Education Minister W. T. Straith, K.C., when he addressed 180 graduating students of Provincial Normal School at a banquet in Empress Hotel Thursday night.

"They wouldn't have gone into the profession if they were not imbued with a very fine idealism," he said. "If they had gone in with the idea of just earning a living, they would have caught the spirit of idealism on their first contact with children in the classroom."

Mr. Straith, who postponed for a day his departure for Europe to speak at the banquet, referred to the steady improvement of the teaching profession, better equipment in the schools and the fact that teachers' salaries had increased.

Miss Mary Francis, valedictorian, was presented with the Dr. Denton Memorial Award as the outstanding student in the graduating class. Other honor students announced at the banquet were: Miss Marion Burdick, Miss Patricia Palmer, Miss Mary Smith, Anthony Tadey and Mrs. Dorothy White.

St. Laurent Denounces New Russian Imperialism

Stalin's Soviet Creation Is In Reality Typical Empire of Past, Premier Declares

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent, in a stinging attack on Russian imperialism, charged Thursday night that the whole Communist press is a "vast apparatus of falsification."

He charged, too, that Russia's imperialistic power is wielded by an "autocrat" through the "slave-labor" methods employed by a small group of "ruthless" men.

Though it masquerades behind the doctrine of revolutionary Communism, which it employs for its own imperialistic purposes, Mr. St. Laurent said, the Seventh Imperial Press Conference, "Russia remains the typical empire of the past."

It's ruling "autocrat"—presumably a reference to Prime Minister Stalin—exercised control through the "repression" of individual liberty and stifling of national traditions in all the countries Russia had absorbed.

"Yet there is no country more jealous of its sovereignty, more determined not to yield an inch to the new forces of international co-operation, than is Soviet Russia, in spite of the fact that the words peace, democracy and progress are ever on the lips of Soviet political leaders."

Mr. St. Laurent spoke at a dinner given by the government.

RED PROPAGANDA

He flayed the propaganda type of news that marks the Communist press machine. He said: "One has only to open a Communist publication in any part of the world to see on it the heavy imprint of the Kremlin. The whole Communist press is one enormous government handout and this dreary conformity, this vast apparatus of falsification seems to be the only access which many millions have to what is going on in the world today."

Democracy could not "afford to underestimate the challenge which Soviet propaganda represents, nor to underestimate the success which, unfortunately, it often achieves."

How was democracy to meet this challenge?

"Certainly not by the methods of our opponents," said Mr. St. Laurent. "Certainly not by attempting to impose a propaganda line on our free press or by curbing its liberties and swamping it by restriction. . . . Our strength lies in the vitality and diversity of our informed public opinion."

NEW INSPIRATION

The Progressive Conservative leader, George Drew, proposing a toast to the guests, delegates of the Empire Press Union, expressed the hope that through their deliberations may come the inspiration to build the idea of an "ever stronger partnership, based not on force but on all that is decent and is good."

He stressed importance of the fact that representatives of three Asiatic countries—India, Pakistan and Ceylon—were present. Their presence demonstrated that there is a readiness to forget "any misunderstandings of the past and to carry forward into the future all that is best in that kind of life that we are seeking to obtain."

$5 FINES FOR TWO

Fines of $5 each were imposed against two Saanich residents yesterday in Saanich court for failing to pay hospital insurance premiums on the due date. Pleading guilty were James B. McKay, 3641 Elliston Street, and Alex G. McKenzie, 2866 Inez Road. They had paid their premiums, the court was told.

UNCLE RAY

A little while ago I spoke of hawks and eagles being the fastest fliers among birds. The peregrine falcon, a member of the hawk family, is ranked as the speed champion.

The long distance champion is a bird of a very different type. It is the jack curlew, which flies from the northern end of North America almost to the southern end of South America!

There are several kinds of curlews, and all have long beaks or bills. They get much of their food by digging in sand and mud to obtain food.

From time to time, a curlew finds a tidbit in the sand or mud. This may be a shellfish.

Curlews like the ocean shore, and gather on the beaches while they are migrating. At nesting time they may go to many kinds of places, including the borders of lakes and ponds. They also like marshy districts.

Some curlews nest in southern Canada, and go no farther south for the winter than the coast of the Gulf of Mexico. The ones with the longest bills have the special name of long-billed curlews, and they stay in North America during both winter and summer.

The jack curlew, on the other hand, often flies across the line of the Equator. It has a length of 18 inches, and is of greater size than most "beach birds."

Many jack curlews nest in northern Canada and on the coast of Alaska. When the short summer ends in the nesting place, the birds head southward, some going to Mexico for the winter, others to Central America or South America.

Those which go as far as southern Argentina and southern Chile are of the greatest interest. They made a trip of 9,000 miles in a straight line. Their line of migration is far from straight; it sometimes curves around coast-lines. The total distance flown counting the curves is from 12,000 to 18,000 miles. Double the figures, and we have the yearly distance a jack curlew flies!

YELLOWKNIFE GETS SUPPLIES

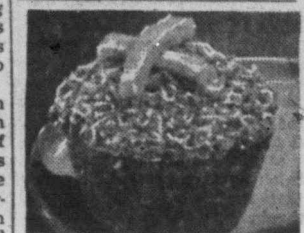

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP)—First spring supplies, including everything from groceries to mine equipment, reached Yellowknife Thursday by water route from the south and north.

The Radium King chugged into the harbor after moving up the Slave River from Fort Smith and bucking ice on Great Slave Lake for 1½ days. The steel tug pulled three barges loaded with 900 tons of supplies.

The Radium Charles also arrived from Norman Wells in the north. It towed six barges, loaded with 2,000 tons of fuel oil, down the Mackenzie River.

MOTORIST FINED

Pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving, William M. Speed, 1319 Vancouver Street, was fined $40 by Magistrate H. C. Hall in Saanich police court Thursday. Charge was laid June 1 on Douglas Street.

British Chief In Berlin Quits—Says West To Win

BERLIN (AP)—Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, retiring British High Commissioner in Berlin, said Thursday that any Allied capitulation to Russian arms here is "completely and clearly impossible."

He described the 1948-49 Soviet blockade as "a physical attack which misfired," but warned that Russia may try another such tactic.

"Wherever and whenever it is renewed," Sir Brian said, "it will be resisted. I am convinced it will never succeed."

Sir Brian, leaving to become Commander-in-Chief in the Middle East, told the West Berlin Assembly that the Western Allies will never forsake the city. "Berlin has become a symbol of freedom and truth in the world," Sir Brian said, after referring to Soviet efforts "to put the people of the city under the Communist yoke."

In his farewell message, Sir Brian again expressed his belief that Berlin and Germany will regain their unity.

COTTON DRIVES FLIES AWAY

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—It's fly season and Mrs. Clinton Gilbert's fly frightener is blossoming again on Richmond screen doors.

The fly frightener is nothing but a fist-size fluff of absorbent cotton. Put it on screendoor and flies take off for other parts. No D.D.T., insecticides or other fly bane required. The cotton alone is supposed to do the trick.

Mrs. Gilbert started it all last year. She passed the word to neighbors and it wasn't long before thousands of doors were adorned with cotton.

Abstinance Of Cripps Stopped Churchill Becoming Socialist

LONDON (AP)—Winston Churchill, former Liberal and now leader of the Conservatives, might have been a Socialist—except for a bottle of champagne. Anyway that's the story as told Thursday night by Sir Stafford Cripps.

As Sir Stafford, Chancellor of the Exchequer, rose to speak in the finance debate, Churchill crossed the House to the Labor side to speak to a friend who had been ill.

"I'm glad to see Mr. Churchill is joining this side of the House," said Sir Stafford, amid laughter. "That reminds me of a story. Mr. Churchill on one occasion offered to become a Socialist if I would drink a bottle of champagne."

Sir Stafford, a teetotaler, said he didn't accept the challenge.

No Bogus Money Appears In City

Police Chief John Blackstock said Thursday there had been no reports to show that any of the $100,000 worth of bogus travelers' cheques passed in cities of the Pacific northwest had been cashed in Victoria. Combined work of Vancouver police and the F.B.I. resulted in an international counterfeiting ring being smashed in the mainland city Wednesday.

YOU'D EXPECT a pharmacist to have prescriptions. That's his business. It shouldn't raise an eyebrow. But when two Victoria pharmacists confronted each other this week with partly filled bottles of their own concoction, it was a little different. The prescriptions, both made up in 1948, had been dug from the beach at Port Angeles and mailed back to the pharmacists.

How did they get there? The simplest explanation might be that they had been thrown into garbage cans in Victoria, had been loaded with other refuse onto the garbage scow and dumped out into the Strait and taken. Wind and tide could do the delivery job.

The return of the half-empty bottles is interesting. Makes you think of messages written by mariners marooned on distant islands, sealed in bottles and tossed into the sea.

YOU MIGHT THINK that and ignore the obvious implications of Victoria garbage being deposited on Port Angeles' doorstep. But you can't laugh that off by saying "Look what we give our neighbors for free—medical supplies."

There isn't any Statue of Liberty with hand raised on the Port Angeles sandspit calling for "the wretched refuse of your teeming shores."

That's only an incidental worry to the two Victoria pharmacists, though. They looked at the two bottles that were sent back to them, read the description of their contents and recognize them as prescriptions that should be taken only with extreme care in certain doses.

What, they wonder, might have happened if they had been picked up by youngsters, in the way youngsters pick up intriguing bottles from the garbage float line that sometimes comes into a beach? What if childish curiosity had prompted them to test the mixtures?

THAT ISN'T too remote a possibility. Several years ago patent medicine manufacturers occasionally tossed samples onto local porches to popularize their products. The inquiring juvenile mind, which led too many youngsters to test a certain chocolate-coated laxative distributed in that way, brought action. The results were unhappy. Such distributions ended.

The pharmacist says a person should destroy a prescription when it has fulfilled its purpose, not just throw it away. The pharmacist would be quite happy to fill it again when and if needed.

On the other point, Victoria should give a little more thought to its garbage disposal system.

IF YOU WATCH the Y.M.C.A. track team work out, you get several impressions. Probably the most vivid is created by the talent on display. The variety in the sweaters they wear. A couple of the boys—one a British Empire champion—sport the crimson of the Canadian Olympic team. A couple more are in British Empire Games monkey suits. Another is in the colors of Oregon State and his side-kick is representing St. Mary's of California. Local clubs and schools make up the rest. It's a smart collection pacing and sprinting around the field in the southeast corner of Victoria High School grounds. The coaching's good. The spirit's excellent.

You watch them. Then you begin to wonder what happened to plans for the new cinder track the Gryo Club was going to finance. If you make inquiries, you grow puzzled.

THE GYRO CLUB raised the money. The school board prepared the ground—and that cost plenty, too. They're working together well now after their early misunderstanding. But there's no track. Contractors just don't seem to want to bid on the job of putting in the cinder oval.

Those who expected the path to be put down last summer were too optimistic. Those who hoped to see it ready for use this year were conservative enough. One engineer says the actual job could be done in six weeks.

Victoria has had enough discomfort over construction squabbles in the last few months. Let's hope any future cinders go on the running track, not into the public eye. Contractors, as citizens, should be just as interested as anyone else in providing facilities for our athletes. Maybe they ought to sharpen up their starting technique.

VANCOUVER HAS a pretty ambitious construction job ahead of it for the 1954 Empire Games. In the next three and a half years it has to produce a stadium, swimming pool, running track and field oval. That intangible something called civic pride prompts the hope that Victoria's modest track will be in operation before the major Vancouver establishment opens.

20 St. Louis College Graduates Receive Diplomas From Bishop

Bishop James M. Hill of Victoria presented diplomas to the 20 members of the graduating class of St. Louis College at the St. Ann's Academy auditorium Thursday evening.

In a special presentation, Francis Milligan, class of 1949, received a gold medal for first place honors in the provincial examinations last year. Medals were presented for first and second place in this year's class, for religion and public speaking.

Roderick Pearce, president of the Students' Council gave the valedictory.

In addressing the graduates, Rev. Dr. A. J. MacDonald of St. Andrew's Cathedral pointed out the need for a Christian education. He praised parents for their foresight in providing such an education for their sons.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR

According to Rev. Brother F. C. Carroll, principal, the school enjoyed a highly successful year, both academically and athletically.

Following the graduation exercises, students attended a formal dance at the Monterey Restaurant.

On Wednesday evening, 21 boys graduated from grade eight. They received diplomas from Rev. G. O. Penfold, chancellor of the diocese. Students receiving an average of 86 per cent or more received a special diploma.

Valedictory was given by Peter Hinchcliffe.

Students graduating from the college were: Marcel Vaesen, Richard Urton, Robert Saunders, Philip Redford, Bernard O'Neill, John O'Neill, Kenneth O'Shea, Roderick Pearce, Patrick O'Shea, Donald Dagg, Joseph Clarkson, John Clarkson, Alfred Cassidy, John Callan, Thomas McIlveen, William Haley, Raphael Jackman, John Kennedy, Thomas Keys and Roy Lister.

License Lack Brings Fines

Driving a vehicle after his yellow license had been taken from him cost Peter G. Hartnell, 1124 May Street, $25 in city police court today. He was found guilty on a charge of driving a car without a license.

Yellow license was sent to the motor vehicle superintendent after Hartnell was convicted recently on a charge of exceeding the speed limit, the court was told. C. L. Harrison, city prosecutor, said the license had since been returned to accused.

Gordon B. Shaw, 1750 Lansdowne Road, also was fined $25 for not being the holder of a subsisting driver's license.

Pleads Not Guilty To False Pretences

R. Blakeney, six-foot-two commercial fisherman, entered a plea of not guilty in city police court today to a charge of obtaining money by false pretences by means of a worthless cheque. He was remanded to Wednesday. James J. Proudfoot appeared as counsel.

Hans Gruber of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and Geoffrey Hodgson of the Victoria Gilbert and Sullivan Society said present space in the Sirocco was not adequate for their needs.

Mrs. Ina D. D. Uthoff said she felt it would be unwise to divert the Arts Centre group from its particular goal to one that might not benefit them in the end.

The gathering was unanimous in endorsing the pressing need for a building which would comprise auditorium, rehearsal space, studios, offices and workshops.

MANY REQUIREMENTS

Committee To Seek Home For Music, Arts Groups

The difficulty of meeting the requirements of a wide range of music, drama and arts groups almost wiped out the newly organized Community Centre Committee at its second meeting Thursday night in the Broughton Street Arts Centre.

A last-minute resolution assured representatives of 12 organizations that further investigation would be made into the possibility of the Sirocco or some other site, being utilized to house musical, theatrical and other activities.

A central committee was appointed to deal with the matter

DOUKS FOR TOURIST BAIT

Although hardly practical, Rev. Glen Stevenson, representing the Port Alberni Chamber at the convention of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island in Sidney, 18 miles north of Victoria, Thursday, offered the following as a solution to the Doukhobor question.

"Why not place the Doukhobors on a special plot of land somewhere in the province and let them continue their strip-tease acts and nude parading as a tourist attraction?" he asked.

Tuna Fleet Awaits Word From U.S. Boat

A fishing fleet composed of nearly 100 vessels is being rigged up this week for tuna fishing grounds from 100 to 200 miles off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The fleet will sail from Victoria and other island ports as soon as news is received that schools of tuna are moving northward from southern waters. Special rigging is required to fish for the prized "chicken of the sea."

Fishermen report they have not yet received any news of tuna off the coast, but they expect large schools of fish to be moving northward within the next week or two.

Scouting for tuna off Washington and B.C. at the present time is the United States fishery vessel John N. Cobb, operated by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Any news of interest to tuna fishermen will be broadcast from the vessel each day at 2 in the afternoon, standard time.

The John N. Cobb will scout for tuna during the rest of this month, July, August and September. She will transmit information on frequency of 2616 kilocycles.

Carson Says Main Highways To Get Priority Over Tofino Road

Replies To Criticisms Of Island Chambers Of Commerce Delegates

A road linking Tofino with Port Alberni is "bound to come," but not before main highways of Vancouver Island have been put in first-class shape, it was stated today by Works Minister E. C. Carson.

He was commenting on discussion Thursday at the Sidney meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island on road-building policy.

"The organization is advocating early construction of a road to Tofino and in a resolution passed at the meeting asked the government what priority the west coast link would be given in relation to other road construction on the island.

In answer, Mr. Carson said the government had no plan yet for a Tofino road.

"We've got to concentrate on our main highways first," he said.

There was millions of dollars worth to be done on the Island Highway still, the minister stated, and this would be carried out before consideration was given to the Tofino road.

MUST HAVE BASE

"We've got to have a base to work from," Mr. Carson said.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Pass Me A Sandwich, Mom,
I'm Getting Hungry Again

By PENNY SAVER

I do like to be beside the seaside, especially if there's a healthy supply of sandwiches, a carton of cold, soft drinks and me big toe dabbling in the salt chuck. 'Course there's always the good body, who stands in the kitchen preparing the stacks of sandwiches, to be considered in all this. What to put between two slices of bread and make it appetizing is an art in itself.

Cheese is in great assortment these days with the reappearance of tumbler filled with about four ounces of cheese. Selling at 24 pennies each there's Bluford cream cheese, pimento, relish and cream cheese, and the smoked and nippy varieties of cheese, among those offered by two or three well-known companies. The larger eight-ounce tumbler will cost you 39 cents. In packages, a half pound runs about 29 cents and in the two-pound economy size, $1.03.

Favorites of picnic goers are the canned variations of beef, pork and liver, veal and ham, deviled ham, pork and liver or chicken, that sell at 14 cents a tin. Salmon spread, two wee tins for 11 cents, salmon and fish paste 15 pennies a jar, or smoked fish paste, two tins for 17 cents, are popular too. Tuna fish, 36 pennies, sardines, 23 cents, and pink salmon at 22 cents a tin, are all-time favorites. Tuna is delightful mixed with sweet pickles and mayonnaise, and a drop or two of lemon juice, likewise salmon. Denmark offers a liver paste in 23-cent tin that's a tasty treat mixed with mayonnaise.

Ever tried dried beef, it's water sliced, mixed with salad dressing or relish? The sum of 49 cents buys you a jar. Then, too, there are the jars of sandwich spread in the medium size for 46 cents and the small size at 27 cents a jar.

At your favorite delicatessen or grocery store you can always load up with a pound of bologna, 39 cents, garlic sausage (if you're going to have the beach to yourself), veal loaf, 49 pennies per pound, luncheon meat . . . that includes assortments of ham and pickles . . . or liver sausage at 43 a pound.

On the other hand if you just prefer bringing along a pound of wieners, 45 a pound . . . they are often on special at 39 cents . . . you'll have everybody on the beach holding out an opened bun, with the mustard on the top, of the bun that is.

Want to make Junior smile even if he's just suffered a whale of a ducking, just pass him a peanut butter sandwich and watch his eyes light up like a pinball machine. In tins, the 27-ounce size, peanut butter sells at 59 cents. Marmalade, a large jar, 42 pennies, and the 48-ounce tins of apricot jam, 79 cents, peach, 73 cents, cherry, 92 cents, red plum 59 pennies, raspberry, 83 cents and strawberry, 99 cents a tin.

A happy picnic to all, especially to the unfortunate with sand in his teeth!

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

Every sensitive adult is conscious of the rough way in which some parents handle their children. Go along any city street and note the angry, aggravated parent, whose child's short steps cannot keep up with her own and the inconsiderate, even cruel, way in which she yanks him along after her.

I saw a mother try to stop her child's crying, as they stood waiting for a bus, by lifting her repeatedly by one arm. When the child screamed she hit the arm, as if that would improve the situation.

Many a mother pulls up a sitting child by the arms instead of placing her hands under the armpits and lifting him thus. A child's arms can be pulled from the shoulder socket almost as easily as can a doll's on its elastic. Dislocation of the elbow or shoulder socket is an extremely painful ailment and it isn't uncommon among undernourished children, or among those whose parents prod or pull them by the arms to get done what the adult wants done.

There is an excellent article by Emily Catigione on this subject in the current number of Family-Child Digest. In it she explains the ease with which an elbow can be thrown out of joint by swift pulls on an immature arm.

Children are so helpless. They are so completely at the mercy of strong-willed and strong-armed adults. And the parent who expresses her anger toward a child by hurting him, is just the one who would get some satisfaction at pulling the child around, when his behavior displeased her.

Our leaflet No. 73 "How to Manage the Child Wisely," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Elder in care of this newspaper.

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix: I am married, have two small children, and live with my husband's mother. My mother-in-law spoils them, particularly the little girl, until they are being ruined and I am powerless to help it. Neither their father or I have any control over the children, for their grandmother opposes our every effort to discipline them. The little girl of three still has to be rocked to sleep and screams as if she were mad every time she is crossed. I want to raise my children properly, but it is impossible to do so under the circumstances. What shall I do?

WORRIED MOTHER

Answer: Your first duty is to your children and it is something that you must do right now, immediately. It cannot be put off to some later date, for the pattern of a child's life is set by the time it is four years old and nothing that you can do after that will greatly change it. No child should be brought up in the house with a grandmother or a maiden aunt unless the grandmother and the maiden aunt have self-restraint enough to keep hands off them and leave them to their mother to rear.

TISSUE AND CHALK BAD SWIMSUIT COMBINATION

LONDON (CP)—A London factory imported French tissue for green cotton-fabric swimsuits.

When the tissue went into production the workers started sneezing and went on sneezing. Eighteen sneezed themselves into sick-leave and the factory manager had the tissue analysed.

"Magnesium aluminum silicate in the fabric," was the report. Just French chalk, to which many are allergic. Owner John Miller now has 7,000 yards of material he doesn't know what to do with. Some two-piece swimsuits have already been made, but Miller doesn't know what would happen to the wearers if they were sold. "I've never known anything like it in 35 years' experience," he said.

V.O.N. Visits For May Show Increase Over Other Years

All types of illness kept V.O.N. nurses busy during the past month it was reported at the V.O.N. board meeting in Y.W.C.A. with Mrs. E. Mallek presiding.

Number of calls is growing because of increased use of intramuscular therapy, penicillin, streptomycin, iron and vitamin preparations and others, supervisor Miss M. Baird noted. She reported 1,965 visits made during the past month as contrasted with 1,793 visits in May last year, and 1,259 in May the year before.

Miss Baird also noted that Miss Vivian Wylie, 1949 graduate of Royal Jubilee Hospital, has joined the staff and that Miss Dorothy Parfitt will be on the staff during summer months before returning to University of B.C. to complete work for a degree of B.Sc. in public health nursing.

Miss Betty Short, staff nurse, showed one of the new type nursing bags, provided by Junior V.O.N. and using the map to show layout of seven districts, gave a lucid description of a day's work, illustrating necessity of the combination of skilled nursing care, teaching and team work with doctors in helping people back to health.

"Some people have a hard time accepting the idea that they have a serious illness, particularly when they are young, and it comes as a surprise," Miss Short stated, and concluded, "it takes patient encouragement and careful teaching to get them over the hump."

E. C. Lewis reported for the car committee and a report on the children's fair was given by Mrs. C. F. Usher, president of Junior V.O.N. board. Miss K. E. Gray reported on the Local Council of Women meeting.

More than 85 mothers and daughters and special guests attended the recent banquet arranged by Oak Bay United Church Canadian Girls In Training.

Honored guests included Dr. and Mrs. W. MacPherson, Mr. and Mrs. F. Mackin, Mrs. K. Reilly, Mrs. C. C. Cook and three new Canadian girls who had adopted mothers for the occasion.

Program included violin solo by Anne Robertson, accompanied by Miss J. Robertson; piano solo by Ina Corbett; a sing-song led by Shirley Bennett and C.G.I.T. leaders Miss Marion Burnett and selections by a girls' choir.

Table decorations, place cards and programs were all done by the girls.

Toast to mothers was proposed by Peggy Marshall with response by Mrs. E. H. Tucker; to the church by Sandra Parton and response by Dr. MacPherson.

Closing candlelight service was conducted by Bar-Jean Dawson, Kathleen Stobart and Anne Robertson, the theme, "Follow the Gleam."

Guild Hears From Member Abroad

A well-attended meeting of St. David's Women's Guild, was held at the home of Mrs. A. N. Westwood, Parker Avenue, with Mrs. K. M. Lew is presiding.

Treasurer, Mrs. Ronald, reported $165 made at a bazaar. A letter of greeting was read by secretary, Mrs. M. Fairclough, from Mrs. H. J. S. Reynolds, written while aboard "The Franconia," bound for England and the Continent.

The Guild will not hold business meetings during July and August, but on July 11, a garden party, will be held at "The Pools," home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pottage, Cordova Bay Road. A speaker will give an address on missions, during the early part of the afternoon. Mrs. Westwood will serve tea; Mrs. A. Taylor and Mrs. J. Wyper will be in charge of a miscellaneous stall, and Mrs. Archie Miller, tea tickets.

Tiny Island Off Sidney Paradise For Ornithologists, Feathered Friends

Two colonies of double-crested cormorants, largest of three species on B.C. coast, were found on Bare Island by ornithologists. In some parts of country, bird is called "lawyer" because, when perched, it resembles robed barrister.

Hungry young cormorants were found in nest anxiously awaiting return of foraging parents with food for them. Assiduous parental attention at meal times makes young grow into powerful divers and fast fliers which hunt sea for fish.

PROTECTED BY GOVT.

Thousands Of Sea Birds Inhabit Jagged Bare Is.

By HUMPHREY DAVY

Birds . . . I never saw so many birds. The air, the sea and the land were full of the winged creatures.

They wheeled above my head in the thousands; their wild cries echoing across the blue sea. Below me, a drop of nearly 200 feet, a seal bobbed its head out of the water and gazed at me with curiosity.

I was standing on Bare Island, otherwise known as Mandarte, situated about nine miles from Sidney. It is mostly rock, about a quarter of a mile long, and rises out of the water east of James Island like a scaly prehistoric monster.

The fascination about this Gulf Island, so near Victoria, is its inhabitants — sea birds which number in the thousands. There are countless gulls, pigeon guillemots, cormorants and oyster catchers. A few shore birds find shelter there in low-lying shrubs and a few hardy trees.

Bare Island is in fact one of the main nesting places of sea birds of southern Vancouver Island. For this reason it is a bird reserve and permission must be first obtained from Ottawa before visiting the island. At one time the federal government posted a warden there to stop people from molesting the birds during the breeding season.

BIRD COUNT

I went to the island with members of the Victoria Natural History Society who were out on a bird count. The party was headed by J. O. Clay, a Victoria ornithologist, and Mrs. James Hobson, president of the society.

The party, composed of 20 men and women, were taken to the island aboard the 34-foot launch of Herbert Corfield, who knows the Sidney coast like the back of his hand. We disembarked on the east side of the island as its western approaches are inaccessible because of high cliffs.

If the cries of the birds have any meaning, our arrival on the island met with the disapproval of the entire bird colony. They hissed, croaked and shrieked at us on the wing and from the bare rocks ashore.

The first thing to catch our attention was the abundance of nests and eggs. They lay everywhere: on the rocks, grass and bare earth. There were nests about every three or four feet, each containing two or three eggs. On the west side of the island there were more nests on the ledges and nooks of the steep cliff. How the owners were able to tell one nest from another is a mystery.

The party also saw an oyster catcher, a queer sort of bird, whose idea of a nest is simply a neatly arranged circle of small pebbles around an egg or two. The pigeon guillemot, unlike the gulls, laid their eggs in deep tunnels in the earth or under rocks.

MOST FASCINATING

The most fascinating bird was the double-crested cormorant, the largest of three species found on the coast and the least numerous. A count of these birds revealed there were nearly 44 pairs nesting on the island. In 1945, only four nests were seen on the island, and only 18 in 1946.

But the most spectacular sight was the mass of birds which inhabited the island. I tried to get a picture of them, but my camera failed me when I had use for it most. Cameras behave like that at times, I'm told.

When we left the island, it looked as though every bird was on hand to see us off. They were perched on every vantage point to see us depart on board the launch. I'm sure they were in complete approval of our departure.

Eggs of gull on Bare Island which is main breeding place for gulls of southern Vancouver Island.

Every Second Briton Bets On Horses, Dogs Or Soccer

By JOHN E. CARLOVA

LONDON (Reuter)—The average Briton enjoys a good bet almost as much as a good cup of tea.

Statistics recently compiled indicate that every second person in Britain bets, which bears out the verse:

"The Latin he is saucy,
"The American likes to bet;
"But the Englishman is horsey,
"And dearly loves to bet."

During a Labor Party rally at Huddersfield, Herbert Morrison said that "on an average, something like 10 shillings ($1.55) a week out of the pay pocket goes in a flutter on a horse or the dogs or the soccer pools."

He verbally spanked Britons for this expenditure and advised them to sink it instead in national savings certificates.

The gamblers are not likely to heed Morrison's words. Betting in Britain, like tea-drinking, is definitely here to stay.

This however, does not mean Britain is a country of neurotic

Garage Asks Exclusion From New Closing Law

A request that they be allowed to remain open until midnight as at present was received at City Hall Thursday from T. B. Lumsden, general manager of Olson Motors Ltd.

"We feel the midnight closing by-law is adequate to take care of all requirements and that if one has to operate 24 hours a day with a dead period between 12 midnight and 6 next morning, it is costly and benefits to the motoring public limited to a few," Mr. Lumsden wrote.

Several gasoline service stations and garages have asked that they be made an exception in the proposed by-law revision which would make it compulsory to close at 6 at night or give 24-hour service.

Garage and Motor Trades' Association of B.C., Victoria Branch, which petitioned for the by-law revision, are not in favor of a midnight closure for they contend no garage would then remain open all night, with subsequent loss of accommodation for the motoring public.

A delegation from the association will meet City Council on the matter.

FINGERPRINTS DON'T LIE

THE STORY: Private detective Martin Queripel is trying to clear Paul Moody, a young sculptor, of a murder charge in the slaying of Wendell Palmer, the father of Moody's fiancée, Azalea Palmer. Police detective James Stivers claims fingerprints on the base of the telephone used to bludgeon Palmer to death are Moody's. At the police crime laboratory, Queripel examines these prints, and then re-enacts the crime, using another phone. Then he asks Stivers to compare prints he left with those found on the instrument used in the murder. Stivers does this and points out that "they ought to tell the story."

CHAPTER XXIII

Martin Queripel was so overwrought that he condescended to a crude pun. "Yes, the fingerprints seem to tell the story. But things have a way of busting at the seams. By the way, could you have these prints of mine blown up the same size as those you took from Moody?"

Stivers nodded.

"How long will it take?" Queripel asked.

"Well, we're pretty busy," said James Stivers. "How would tomorrow afternoon do?"

"Perfectly," said Queripel. "I'll be here at 3."

Stivers was curious to know the cause of Queripel's manifest excitement. He inquired:

"Could I ask just what you're trying to prove?"

"Certainly."

"Well?"

KELSO'S PRINTS

"Ask me tomorrow at 3. I'll just beg one more favor. Get me a good print of that unidentified thumb near the mouthpiece." Stivers nodded. "Also a set of Detective Pete Kelso's fingerprints from his police card."

Stivers gasped: "Kelso! What do you know about Kelso—or care?"

"He was at the Palmer house, wasn't he?"

"I'll say he was! I came near kicking him out."

"Why?" Queripel restrained his eagerness.

"Oh, he was too damned—helpful. If there's anything I hate it's one of those helpful people."

"Whom was he really trying to help?"

Vancouver Burial For Former Member

Foreign Aid Bill Given Tentative Nod

WASHINGTON (BUP)—Two Senate committees today tentatively approved a bill authorizing $1,222,500,000 in new foreign aid after sharply curtailing President Truman's request for power to help arm any nation.

The lion's share of the new program, $1,000,000,000—would go to the North Atlantic Pact powers. The remainder would be divided among Greece, Turkey, Iran, the Philippines, Korea and far eastern countries.

The Joint Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees, however, withheld final action until Monday pending discussions with Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) on the extent of presidential authority to sell or give American armaments to other countries whose defense he deems vital to the U.S.

Diversion Proposed

Also deferred until Monday was a proposal by Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. (R-Mass.) that some of the Marshall Plan local currency funds, so-called counter-funds, be diverted from economic recovery purposes to rearmament. Chairman Tom Connally (D-Tex.) of the Foreign Relations Committee, said that the proposal probably would not be adopted.

Senators today knocked out a proposal that would have enabled Mr. Truman to devote up to $122,500,000 for arms to any nation he might choose. The provision was altered to limit such power to European nations alone. A proposal for further limitation is still to be decided.

Wightman Cup Women Get Enormous Lead

LONDON (Reuter)—The United States today gained an all-but-decisive lead in their defence of the Wightman Cup, emblematic of lawn tennis superiority between American and British women.

Louise Brought, Margaret Dupont, Pat Todd and Doris Hart won two singles and a doubles match—all in straight sets—to set up a 3 to 0 advantage in the best-of-seven contest.

The remaining four matches will be played tomorrow.

Louise Brought set the pace, slugging Mrs. Jean Walker-Smith 6-0, 6-0, with a rapid fire attack the English girl could not hope to match.

Mrs. Dupont overcame Mrs. Betty Hilton 6-3, 6-4, after a stiff fight and Miss Hart and Mrs. Todd defeated Mrs. Walker-Smith and Jean Quertier, 6-2, 6-3.

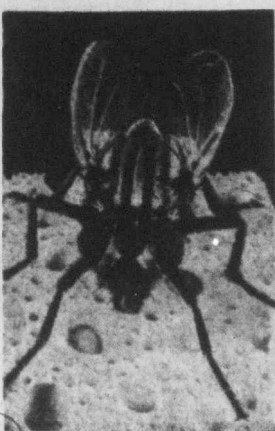

Graziano Hurt Cannot Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Graziano suffered a fractured left hand in training and won't be able to go through with his scheduled title clash with middleweight champion Jake Lamotta on June 28, the International Boxing Club said today.

The I.B.C. said it hoped to come up with a substitute opponent for Lamotta that night and is dickering with three—welterweight champion Ray Robinson, Laurent Dauthelle of France and Tiberio Mitri of Italy.

Weather Forecast

Clear and warm today and Saturday. Winds light. Low to night, 50; high tomorrow, 70.

Fly Foiled

A Richmond, Va., housewife, Mrs. C. S. Gilbert, on a neighbor's tip, discovered that she could get rid of pesky flies by sticking a few wads of cotton in the screen door.

Soon word got around the town and cotton-dotted screen doors bloomed all over. In Washington, Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan had no comment. But an aide said that maybe he had the solution: (1) the flies may think cotton is their dreaded enemy, the moth; (2) the dumb flies think cotton in the screen doors is a spider web.

MATTER OF URGENCY

Members Ask Commons For Soil Erosion Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—British Columbia members called in the Commons today for a clear cut government policy on soil erosion caused by Canada's major rivers and said British Columbia's floods have made this a matter of urgency.

H. W. Herridge (C.C.F.-Kootenay West) led off on public works estimates by citing the case of the Columbia River and its depredations. The city of Trail, he said, needed aid in protecting itself. But the problem

BIG THREE REJECTS NOTE FROM SOVIET

Trieste Issue
Said Used For
Propaganda Only

WASHINGTON (UP)—The western Big Three today rejected a Soviet demand that their troops leave Trieste and countered with a charge that Russia is trying to "injure the cause of peace."

The United States, Great Britain, and France handed curt notes to the Soviet Foreign Office in Moscow accusing Russia of raising the Trieste troop issue for propaganda purposes.

Russia on April 21 accused the western powers of setting up illegal naval bases in Trieste. The Soviet note demanded that western troops withdraw from the city.

The American reply, signed by Ambassador Alan G. Kirk, said "the Soviet government's latest intervention in this question was obviously designed to sow confusion, impede development of any 'mutually satisfactory agreement, and hence injure the cause of peace.'"

France never has had any forces at Trieste, and the United States and Britain never have maintained naval installations of any kind there, the American note said.

The United States, Great Britain, France and Russia agreed in the Italian Peace Treaty to make Trieste, a former port area of Italy, an international zone. Since then, the United States has proposed that the area be returned to Italy.

5,000 Folk Isolated In Bridge River Area

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbians' fear of a recurrence of the disastrous 1948 floods came true today. The 1950 floods were upon them.

As the surging Fraser River beat at the dikes and smaller rivers tumbled over their banks into fertile valleys, volunteers got ready to man the protecting walls of earth and stone.

Army engineers were called to duty in the Agassiz area as flood waters weakened a five-mile stretch of dike. Agassiz, 65 miles east of here, was the centre of the 1948 flood fight. So far, there has been no evacuation of the community of 1,900.

Rising waters attacked road and railway. A 60-foot stretch of the Canadian National Railway transcontinental line was washed out at Cisco, 140 miles north of here, by a rushing tributary of the Fraser. Trains were re-routed and officials said it would take a day and a half to repair the line.

SKEENA OVERFLOWS

Some 400 miles to the north, the Skeena River highway was closed on a 60-mile stretch as the Skeena poured over its banks. Some 100 residents of Usk had already evacuated their homes.

Premier Johnson appealed to the army for help. Some 132 engineers immediately left their Chilliwack camp for the Agassiz area.

At Hope, 99 miles east of Vancouver, the Fraser reached 30.58 feet, almost a foot higher than on this date in 1948.

In the interior, rivers opened a path of devastation.

Hardest hit is the sprawling Bridge River area, 200 miles east of here, where 5,000 people are isolated by rail, road and telephone.

Evacuation of the village of Minto, near Bridge River, a mining centre, is under way. Streets are under three to four feet of water. The village has a population of 200.

Ranchers have fled their homes in the area, driving cattle to higher ground. Some ranch homes have been swept away in the swirling tide of water.

Evacuation of Minto's residents started Thursday night as water from the junction of Bridge River and Gum Creek swept into the village's main street. (Bridge River is a Fraser tributary.)

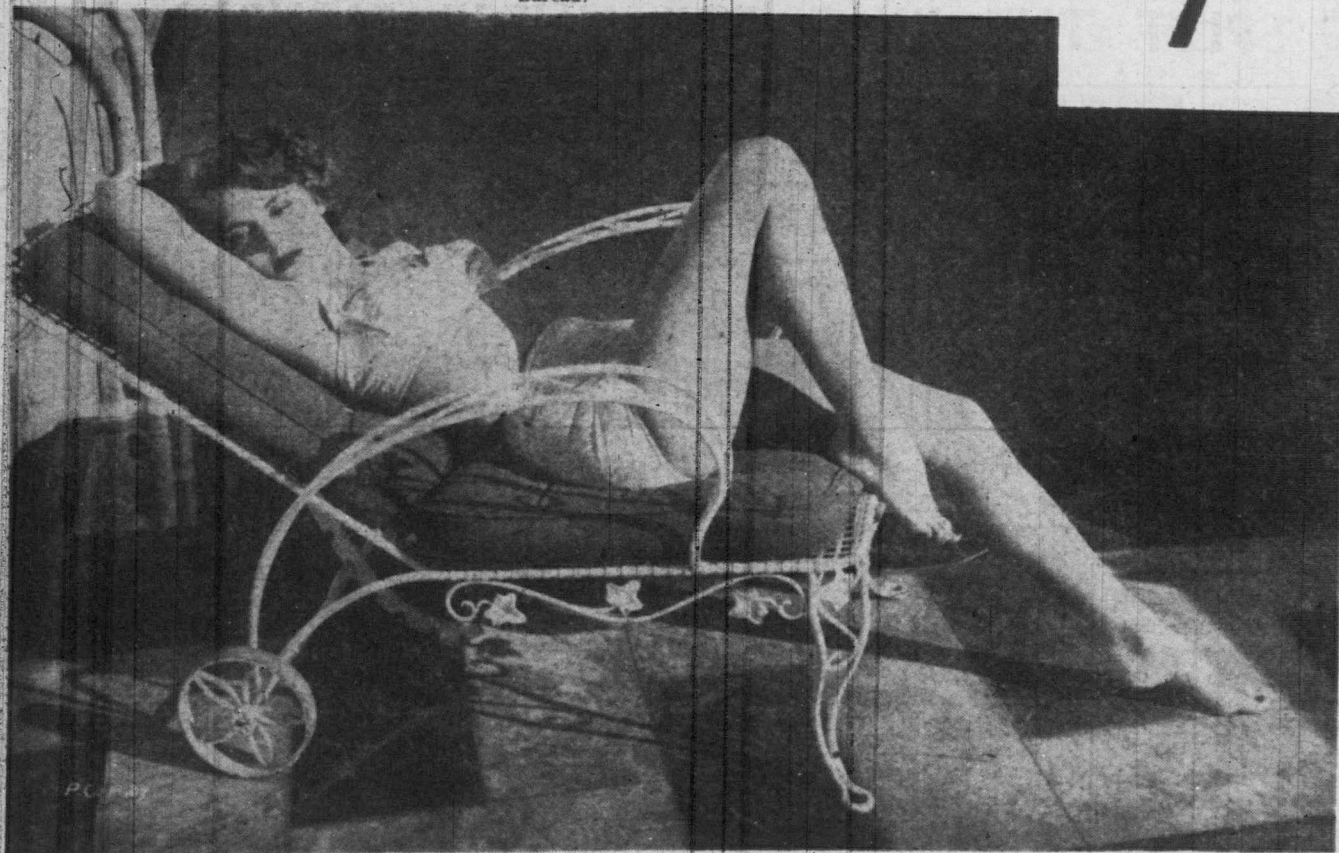

Faithful Friend

Four-year-old Clarence Swope shows the strain of spending night in the densely-wooded Buckhorn area near Altona, Pa., while a search party beat through the brush in a heavy rain to find him. With him is his faithful mongrel dog Teddy, who remained with him and was at his side when searchers found them.—(NEA Telephoto)

MODERN DICK WHITTINGTON

When five-year-old Dick Whittington of Somerset, England, heard the Lord Mayor of London did not have a cat, he thought it was all wrong. So Dick took his own cat, Tinker, to London and offered it to Sir Frederick Rowland. The Lord Mayor thanked the modern Whittington, and slipped a crinkly new pound note in Dick's hand. "Nice man, the mayor," said Dick.

VICTORIA SKIERS ENJOY MAY TIME SPORT

This party of Victoria skiers rests beside a creek on a sub-alpine plateau on Mount Brenton. The Outdoor Club wants the provincial government to preserve this ground for skiers, fishermen and other holidaymakers. At present it is unspoiled, but the threat of the lumberman is ever drawing closer.

WINTER SPORTS STILL IN FULL SWING ON ISLAND

On the northern slopes of Mount Brenton, west of Chemainus, members of the Outdoor Club of Victoria are still finding plenty of skiing ground. This picture was taken this month at an altitude of just over 2,000 feet. This nearest skiing ground to Victoria will remain in condition until the end of the month at least.
